GLEANER 1967

Trademarks

What do you imagine when you think of the world? Do you picture the mixture of nationalities living on the same planet, or do you ponder the earth's setting in the vastness of the universe? These questions have answers which differ from individual to individual, and here is another that calls different symbols to different minds: What do you think of when you think of Webb?

The symbols we think of are the trademarks of Webb. It is hard to define the feeling that lies behind Homecoming and Loyalty; the two main concepts are competition and cooperation — competition in that each class seeks to outdo the others, and cooperation in that the members of each class seek to work together. The concept of school spirit, partly responsible for sending the Beavers to the top in athletic competition, can be understood only by those who experience the wins and losses together.

From the abstract concepts characteristic of Webb spring tangible trademarks. At the opening of home sports events the spotlight shines on the American flag. To students in Reedsburg this flag means more than many others, for it has flown above our nation's capitol. The trophy case filled with plaques and trophies represents many achievements. Pins symbolizing clubs, honors, and awards, class rings, membership cards, letter sweaters, and musical instruments are trademarks which differ in importance from one person to another; but the one trademark now shared by all of us is the school crest which represents all of Webb.

These trademarks of Webb are important, but in addition there are 831 others; 775 students and 46 faculty and administration members. The students are partly a product of the labor of teachers who strive to instill ideas which they hope will make the lives of the young more happy and profitable. It is true that at Webb there are many symbols to represent the school, but the students are the most outstanding trademarks because it is through them that others will judge and identify Webb High School.

The Board Directed School Affairs

School Board

Seven citizens, as members of the school board in the Reedsburg district, have the responsibility of providing the educational opportunities for students in our public schools. In 1966-67 Mr. Riley Stone served as president, Mr. Harry Hearn as vice-president, and Mr. Ralph Holzmilller as clerk. Miss Bernice Moyes was appointed secretary to the board.

The board held regular monthly meetings, which we reopen to the public, on the second Wednesday of each month. A number of special meetings were also scheduled. They were of various lengths, one at which the school bond referendum for a new junior high school was discussed, lasted six hours. The referendum, which had failed by 300 votes in September, passed by 600 on the third vote in January.

The duties and powers of the school board are varied and usually pertain to anything that relates to the educational well-being of the people of the district. Some of the topics discussed and approved by the board were parent-teacher conferences, open house, the Cooperative Program for high school students interested in secretarial careers, and the summer school program.

The school board works hard in reviewing the advantages and disadvantages of the newest school bond referendum.

Superintendent

As the 1966-67 school term began the students, full of enthusiasm and plans for the coming months, entered Webb. They were greeted by Superintendent Lawrence Olson, who wished both students and faculty the "best year ever." This was to be the last time Superintendent Olson would give the first day of school address, for in September the students and citizens of Reedsburg were saddened by the news that he had resigned from his post and would be leaving for New Berlin on October 1. There he would assume the role of assistant-superintendent of the New Berlin Schools.

Upon Mr. Olson's departure, the assistant-superintendent, Mr. Lyle Bruss, took his place. Mr. Bruss came to Reedsburg in 1962 from Beaver Dam, Wisconsin, and during his first four years served three years as principal of Webb and one year as assistant-superintendent. His aims this year were to provide good schools, to maintain a good faculty, to keep our educational system up to the demands of society, and most of all, to help achieve the best educational system possible in Reedsburg. This year Mr. Bruss was busy working with the school lunch and transportation programs, promoting the school building program, reviewing courses of study, and informing students and parents about his plans in order that everyone would know where he stood and what he stood for.

At the radio station Mr. Bruss and Mr. Wanless answer one of the many questions given to them by the citizens of Reedsburg.

Maintained Highest Standards

Mr. Gale L. Wanless, M.S., University of Wisconsin

Asst. Superintendent and Principal

Mr. Gale Wanless and Mr. Arlan VandeWater are leaders in our academic life.

As assistant superintendent, Mr. Gale Wanless believes that the purpose of his administration is to help the students in Webb High School gain ideals, understanding, and skills essential to good citizenship in and out of school. In addition, it should teach them to do critical thinking, to concentrate attention and study effectively and independently, and to awaken in each individual student the motives for work beyond what is required.

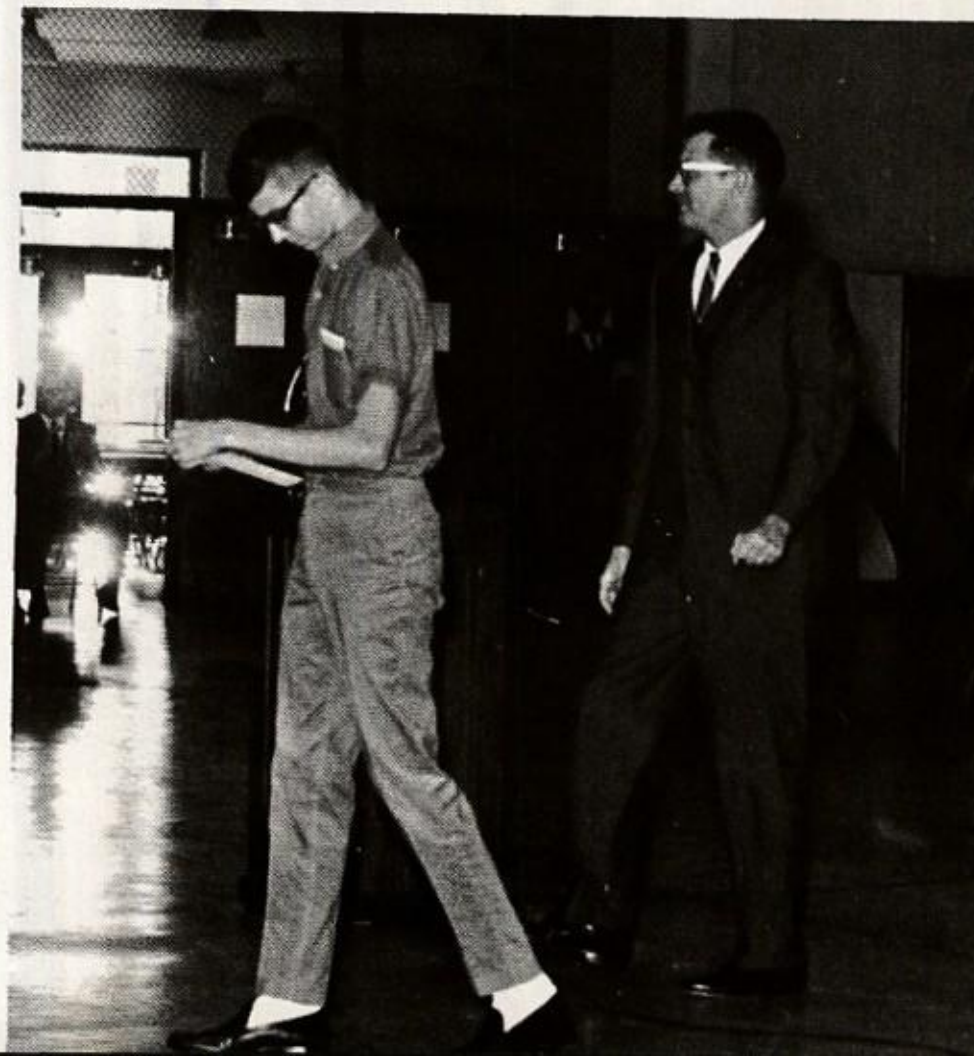

Mr. Arlan VandeWater, principal of Webb High School, states his basic philosophy and purpose as follows: to provide the opportunities for every individual student to gain and learn as much as he possibly can during his four years in high school. For his own guideline, Mr. VandeWater has chosen: to operate the most efficient and effective high school possible and to work closely with each student.

Both administrators work to show the students of Webb High School that abilities and skills alone are insufficient; his thoughts and deeds have a great bearing on his success in school, his success in life and his service to others.

Guidance and Attendance

The guidance and attendance departments work closely with each individual student in regulating his academic life.

This year, the guidance department has taken on a more active role through the efforts of Mr. William Moran, the new director, whose philosophy is that counseling forms the backbone of the entire guidance program and that a student is incapable of succeeding in high school academically when his mind is grappling with personal problems. Frequent advice offered to students is, "When you have a problem, don't make a mountain out of a molehill; let a counselor help you get leveled off".

Also aiding the student, but with another method, is the attendance department headed by Mr. Steven Koch. He believes that education is valuable to all students, even though they may fail to realize it now, and that in order to get the most out of his education, the student must attend school regularly. Thus, attendance cards and detention times are not meaningless, but rather tend to enlarge a student's individual responsibility.

a Quartely Basis

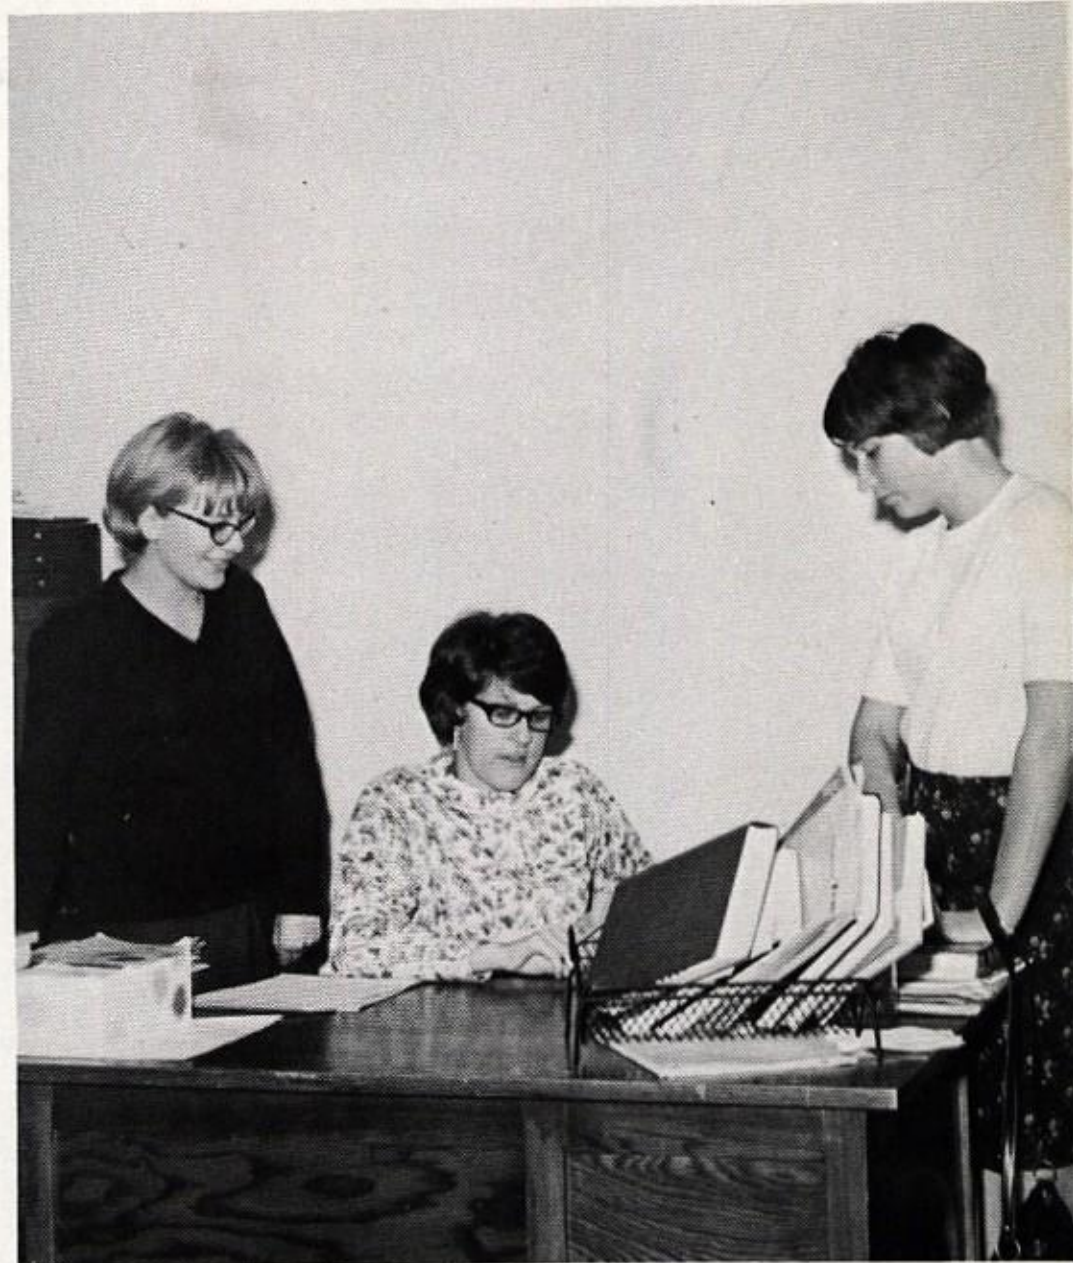

English

In 1964 the four-phase English program was instituted at Webb and, this year it was extended so that the only class to utilize the program as it was originally planned was the sophomores. Mr. Barry said, "This type of teaching has given both the teacher and the student more time to specialize and gather information for each course."

A year of English for the freshmen included a quarter each of composition and literature and a semester of language study. In literature they learned to film and direct their own movies. The sophomores on the original block plan had a quarter each of speech, literature, grammar, and composition. Juniors studied grammar and speech for nine week periods and combined literature and composition for a semester. Senior seminar was open to all seniors who maintained an A average during the nine week literature course. It gave them an opportunity to work on some project of their choice and taught them the value of organizing their time.

Part of the English department which offers a non-academic service at Webb is the journalism class, responsible for publishing the weekly newspaper, the Webb.

Jean Weiss and Rodney Roecker, students of Mrs. Nash, share the spotlight in a movie acted and filmed by the freshman English class.

Sue Brueggeman and Paula Greeno seek Miss Larsen's advice concerning the next week's issue of The Webb, the school newspaper.

Mr. Barry, grammar teacher, intently checks the grammar, punctuation, and capitalization used in scholastic articles.

Modern Language Laboratory

Sandi Walsh assembles a model depicting a temple, the rostra, and the colosseum, while the senators and citizens wander through the forum.

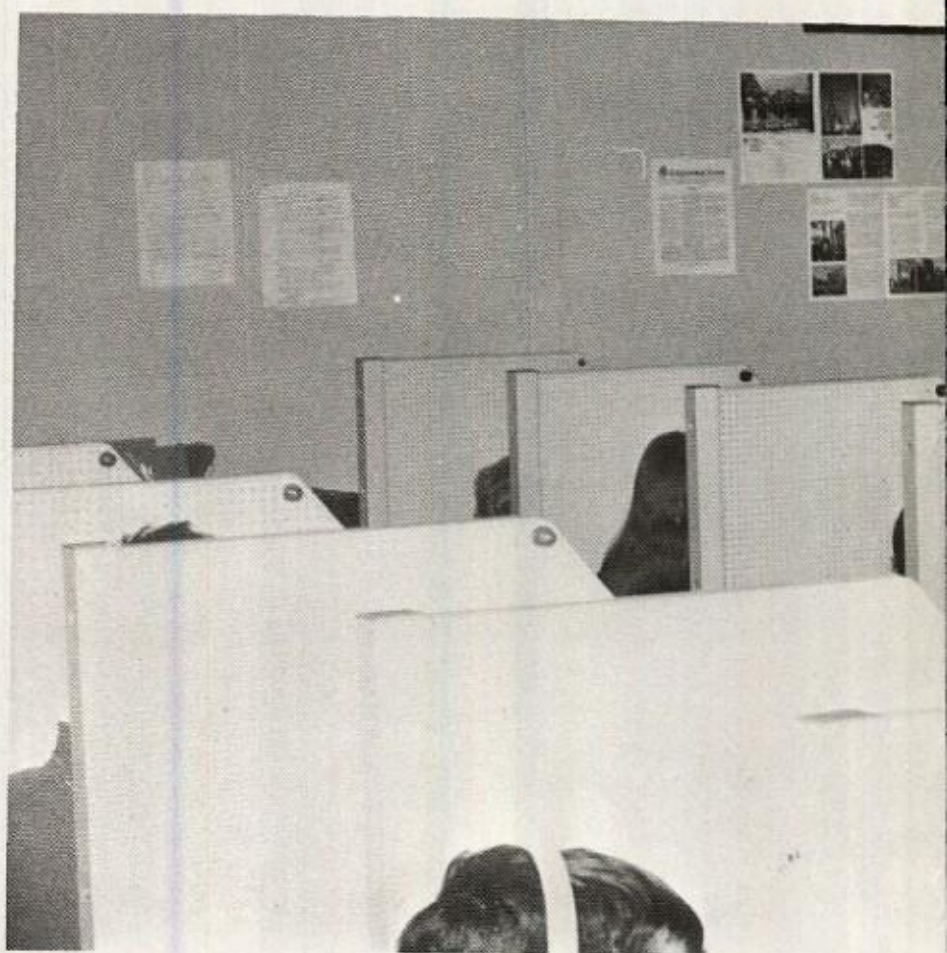

Languages

The foreign language department, because of the varied emphasis each course, Spanish, Latin, and French, puts on its own history, literature, and culture, is not highly unified in its teaching; but its members still share many facilities and activities.

The language lab, designed to allow students to get maximum individual drilling during a class session while the teacher checks on their progress, is a good example of this sharing. Although French and Spanish classes hold their regular class sessions in the lab, Mrs. Happle's Latin students, who meet in an adjoining room, also make use of the taped lessons during room trades with the French students.

The foreign language department, besides providing linguistic instruction, also gives the student a better understanding of the people who speak the language since he studies their history, geographical environment, and literature. One method of culture study, which the students find an enjoyable activity, is the language club meeting. Los Matadores, Les Troubadours, and Romani Hodierni meet monthly, and each sponsors an inter-club party: the French Mardi Gras, the Spanish piniata centered Christmas party, and the popular end-of-the year Latin Banquet.

Mrs. Happle advantageously uses the language lab to acquaint her

Fine Arts

The fine arts courses at Webb provide cultural activities and encourage an appreciation of aesthetics for the students. Both those performing and those observing can profit from their contributions.

While the music departments differ, in that band and orchestra teach the techniques of playing instruments and choir teaches voice development, the end result is the same—a better understanding and enjoyment of great music and composers. All three courses give the student a chance to express himself and to learn self-discipline and cooperation with fellow classmates.

In addition to the new music purchased for each division to play and perform, the orchestra played some unpublished music composed by their own conductor, Mr. James Found. In orchestra, private lessons, beginning in the fourth grade and continuing through high school, acquaint each student with his stringed instrument and improves his group performances.

Private lessons are also a part of the band students' schedule. So that they become more skilled participants in the performing groups and band classes, the equipment for these classes was improved this year by the addition of compressed wood and steel posture chairs. These enable the student to breathe better and therefore to produce better tone.

The art department, which offers three classes of varying degrees of difficulty, requires individual projects, including linoleum block printing, oil painting, block printing, and sculpturing. It gives individual students the chance for aesthetic creativity, using their ingenuity to express their own ideas and feelings. Their work is displayed regularly in the south hall cases and in the front hall for Parent Open House. They are also given the opportunity to display work in the Art Display at the Home Show.

Mr. Found energetically directs the orchestra through Beethoven.

Social Sciences

The social sciences department at Webb High offers courses in many subjects—world history, American history, social problems, economics, political science, and social psychology, the latter three designed primarily for college-bound students.

Prior to this year, freshmen entering high school could take geography, but in 1966 a new plan was organized whereby geography was dropped and American history was substituted. The latter course is now a requirement for entering students not taking a foreign language, who, during their junior year, will continue their study for one semester. Students who have studied a foreign language will as juniors take American history for one year.

World history, a sophomore course, concerns itself with man's story from the beginning of time to the present, with emphasis on European and Western civilization. It prepares students for other classes by teaching them how to get the facts and apply them.

The junior course in American history is taught by a master teacher and two interns, and is designed to help students discover, interpret, and analyze historical data, and to help them become thinking and contributing members to American society. Webb High is unique in that it has the only three-man U.S. history teaching team and lecture-discussion program in this area of the state.

The original senior course, social problems covers four main topics: politics, economics, sociology, and psychology. Each topic is discussed in a nine week course which tries to make students think about everyday situations.

Since it is felt that a variety of courses offers the student a needed opportunity to emphasize one aspect of social science, in his senior year three new alternatives to social problems have been provided. Semester courses which may be taken in a combination of economics and social psychology or economics and political science give seniors more of a chance to specialize.

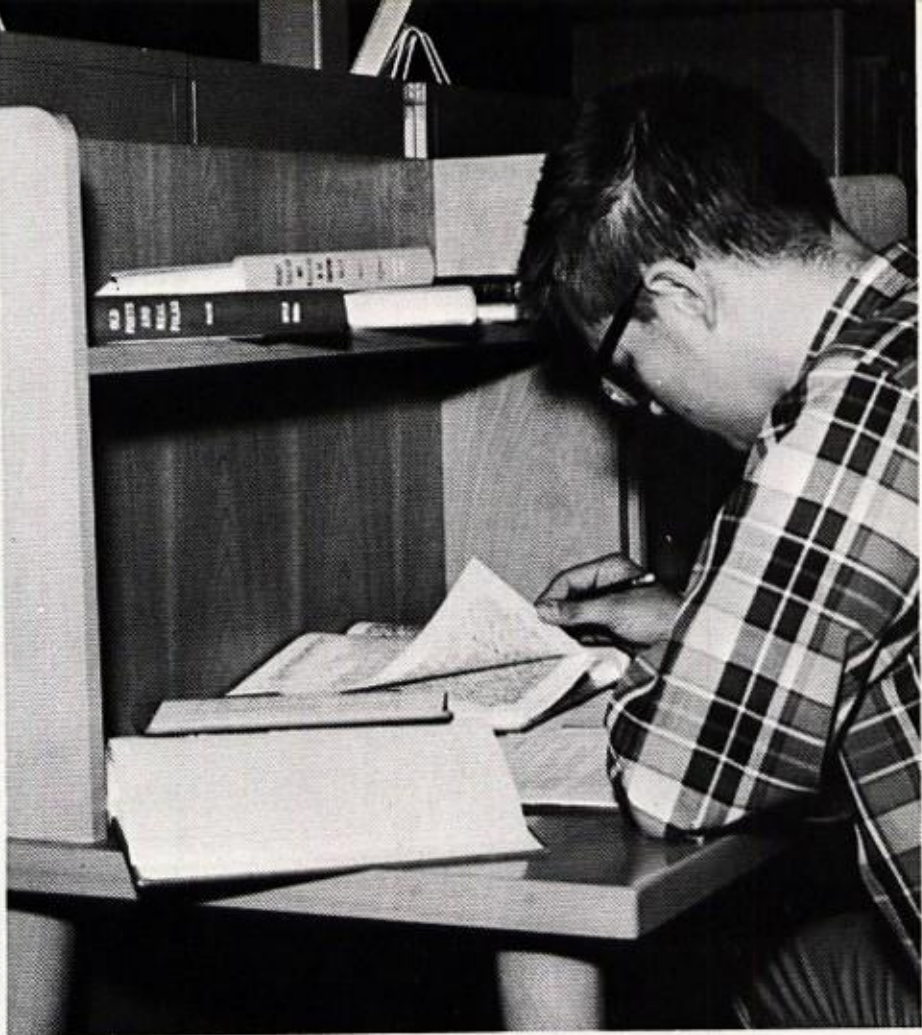

Mr. Koch thoroughly explains the westward expansion of the United States to interested juniors during a history lecture.

property of multiplication over addition with his class.

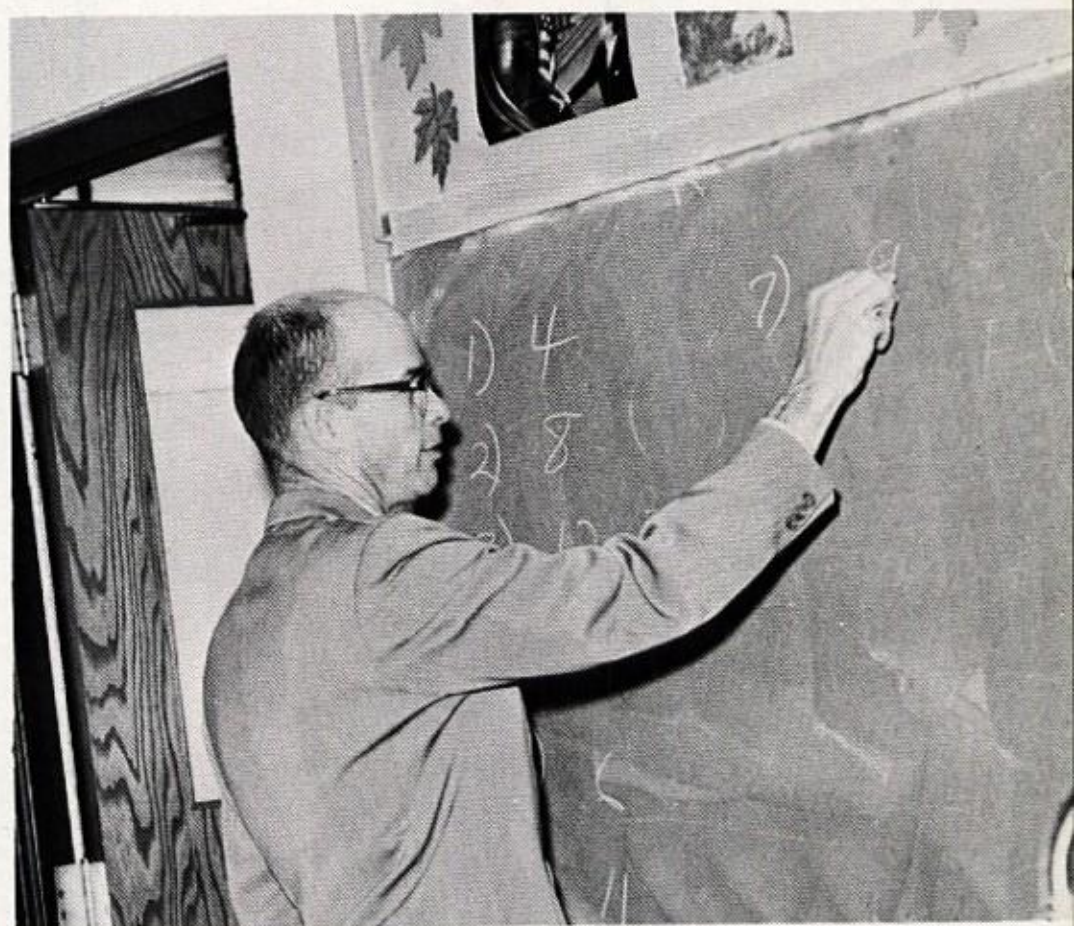

Mathematics

Mathematics has become more important in everyday living and is used by almost everyone, whether in doubling a recipe or filling out income tax forms. Aware of these basic applications of mathematics, Webb High offers an extensive math program with classes ranging from general to specialized courses and requires that, in order for a student to graduate, he must successfully complete two years of math.

Basic subjects offered are general math, a review of grade school arithmetic; consumer's math; and first year and advanced algebra. Geometry is offered to many students, sophomores through seniors, and teaches them to think by solving proofs and using mathematical processes. Any student who desires to further his studies beyond the basic courses has the opportunity to take trigonometry and analytic geometry.

In many of the courses this year, modern teaching methods were employed and experiments were tried. To increase understanding, film strips were shown and explained, and in the spring, students of Webb entered a math contest prepared by the Wisconsin Council of Mathematics Association, putting them in competition with others throughout the state.

Mr. Bittner records a series of answers which may surprise many of his advanced algebra students.

Valuable Addition

Natural Sciences

According to Mr. Clarence Bittner, the natural science department chairman, "Flexibility in science is important, and while no immediate changes are being considered, as the student body grows, and weaknesses are discovered, the science department will expand to fit the needs of the student population."

The aim of Webb's science department is to help the student understand and appreciate science through such courses as senior science, general science, biology, BSCS biology, chemistry, and physics. In addition to classroom activities, many of the classes went on outdoor excursions to aid their studies. Among these events was the field trip taken by the senior science class to Devil's Lake where they analyzed the rock formations left by glaciers.

With the addition of human physiology, the natural science department completed its long-term project of rounding out the school's curriculum so that science is now available to the student throughout his career at Webb. The new class, with the future of nurses and doctors in mind, delves into the study of the human body and its functions.

Vocational Courses

The vocational subjects offered to students attending Webb fall into four major categories: business education, home economics, agriculture, and industrial arts.

The business courses, which teach the skills of shorthand, typing, stenography, and office practice, allow students the opportunity for practical applications of the knowledge they gain. The best example of this is the Cooperative Education Program. This new project, a combination of classroom instruction and supervised work experience, is open to any senior sixteen years old who is taking office practice. Through the benefits of the program the school is able to obtain a fifty per cent reduction on the costs of machines bought to aid students in this field.

The home economics department is divided into regular home economics, a four year series, and home economics survey, a summary course offered to senior girls who have had no home ec.

The agriculture section is broken into many different units including welding, soil and water conservation, farm management, and marketing. In the industrial department courses offered include wood-working, or shop, designed to encourage boys to build their own creations from wood, and drafting, which teaches fundamentals of blueprint sketching, as well as general metals, carpentry, electricity, and auto mechanics.

Special Services

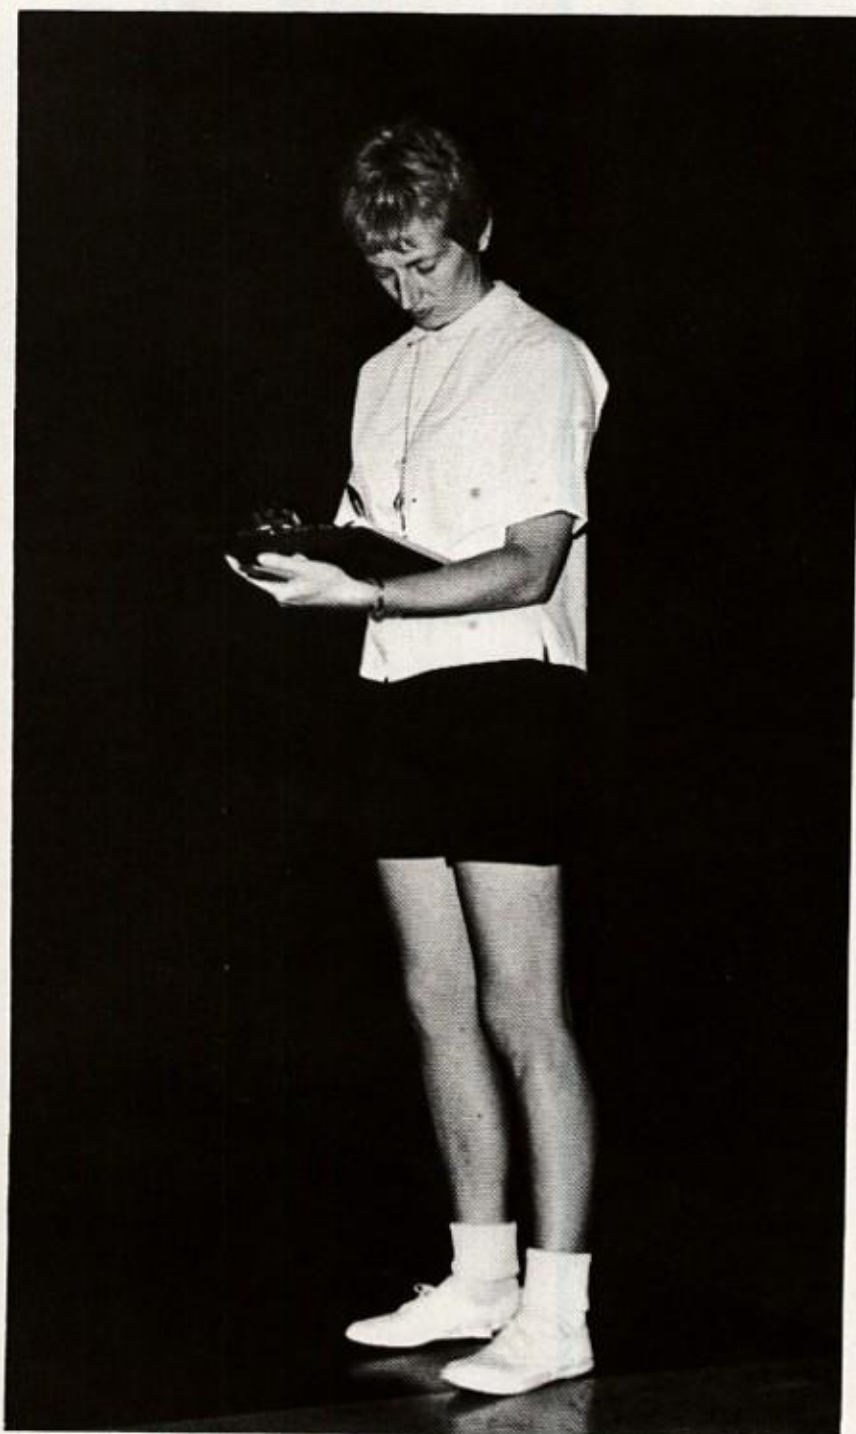

Three non-academic departments at Webb High designed to help the student strengthen skills which require the coordination of his physical and mental abilities, are physical education, speech therapy, and driver education.

Girls' physical education classes this year were introduced to some novel activities. For freshmen and sophomores, folk dancing and track and field were new; for juniors and seniors, field hockey, modern dance, and archery. Other activities undertaken were speed-a-way, tumbling, softball, tennis, badminton, volleyball, basketball, and physical fitness tests. Each of Mrs. Betsy DeMerit's classes was divided into smaller groups called squads to increase unity and to encourage cooperation among the girls, and four or five were elected squad leaders.

Mr. Mike Liebenstein started every boys' physical education class with close-order drills done in military fashion, a fifteen minute exercise period, and a five minute session for agility drills. Some of the activities of freshmen and sophomores were speedball, combatives, wrestling, gymnastics, tennis, and softball. Juniors and seniors participated in archery, soccer, volleyball, tumbling, basketball, and golf.

Mrs. Barbara Grover's work in speech therapy helped many individual students who had a problem in speaking, enabling the handicapped to reach the roots of their defects and overcome them. Mrs. Grover trains such students throughout our district, including those at Webb, Junior High, and South Schools.

This was the second year for our four-phase driver education program. The four phases are classroom, simulator, multiple-car range, and on-the-road training. The simulator and on-the-road experience enable the young driver to respond to actual driving situations. This year Reedsburg participated in a research project, with the support of the State Department of Public Instruction, to test the progress of the students in the course.

Twice a month Mrs. Betsy DeMerit carefully inspects her students' uniforms.

Active Service Personnel Made

Service Personnel

"To aid the students and staff of Webb in all ways possible" is the motto of Webb High's service personnel. And while these people often remain behind the scenes, the school could not succeed without them.

The offices, run by the secretaries, operate smoothly and efficiently each day. Although their main responsibilities include doing clerical work for the administrators, the secretaries also assist in the guidance and attendance departments and the lunch room program. This year the library also has two clerical assistants.

This fall the parents of the children taking part in the hot lunch program had the opportunity to see it in action. They were invited to eat lunch on one day during National Hot Lunch Week, October 9 through 15. This was possible only as result of the hard work of Webb's cooks, who prepare enough food each day for students in four of the district schools. The custodians and bus drivers combine to transport students from Junior High to Webb to eat lunch, and to take food to the Rock Springs and LaValle schools.

The custodians work to keep our school and grounds neat and clean, making Webb an institution to be proud of.

Rain or shine, the bus drivers transport country students to and from school. City students also come to know the bus drivers, for they cooperate to make out-of-town activities such as football games, basketball games, and wrestling matches an enjoyable reality.

Initiation

The perplexed Freshmen began their journey through high school with the traditional initiation. Their main activities of the day were singing, dancing, carrying books, and shining shoes for seniors.

According to the criteria set by the seniors, the freshman boys were to part their hair in the middle and flatten it with vaseline, and the girls were to rat the ends and spray it with hair spray. The boys wore make up, miniskirts, nylons, one high heel, one flat shoe, and a pink hair bow 30.3 centimeters long. The girls, on the other hand, wore goggles, absolutely no make up, swimming trunks, long underwear, and one snowboot.

To complete their outfits all freshmen carried signs in the shape of suckers for the boys and fishes for the girls, bearing the slogans "Freshmen are Suckers" and "Seniors are Sweet".

No freshman initiation could be complete without an assembly to punish disobedient freshmen and to give the initiated an opportunity to get even with those students who were not seniors but participated in the hazing of the newcomers.

Homecoming

Homecoming 1966 brought an end to a busy and spirited week. Throughout the week, each class worked on its float, yell, band, and skit. This year the seniors, placing first in band and yell, and juniors, taking first place in skit, won the honors by receiving five Loyalty points each. The sophomores, with a first place float, and the freshmen followed, taking four points and one point respectively.

The Thursday preceding Homecoming night, a snake dance was led through the streets by Ken Zuehlke, senior vice-president, and the varsity cheerleaders. Following the snake dance, the traditional bonfire was lit in the Old Ball Park.

During the halftime of the Reedsburg-Sauk Prairie game, the queen and the three queen candidates were introduced. Following the game, Jack Opie played at the dance where Queen Linda Koenecke and King Steve Hyzer reigned. Members of the court included class representatives escorted by the senior football players. The class representatives were, seniors: Maureen Sanford, Linda Held and Elizabeth Gates; juniors: Betty Reimer and Mary Gasser; sophomores: Kay Zinn and Marilyn Sefkar; freshmen: Barb Williams and Dawn Suemnicht.

Dave Knight and Dinah Bauer, stars of the musical, carry on a discussion of the pros and cons of marriage.

During a rehearsal, the bartender, played by Bob Mandigo, calls a distracted Dinah Bauer to a telephone call from her boss.

Preparing the make-up on the actors is very important. Here Julia Zastrow applies make-up to Bob Mandigo.

Were Exceptionally Well Done

Musical

This year's all school play was the musical Bye Bye Birdie, a take off on the drafting of Elvis Presley into the army. Before leaving to serve his nation the rock-and-roll singer, Conrad Birdie, played by Webb High's Gary Heubing, goes to give a goodbye kiss to an average teen-age girl, Kim Macafee, who is Mary Ann Gasser in real life. Bye Bye Birdie is a dual-love story. The other lead actresses and actors were Dinah Bauer as Rose Alvarez, Dave Knight as Albert Peterson, and Joe Hasler as Hugo Peabody.

There were over one hundred twelve Webb High students and area people participating in the orchestra, in the cast, on the publicity committee, or on the stage crews. Many of the teachers from the English, music, and home economics departments worked to help make the play a success. Practice for the musical began eight weeks before the two performances on December 10 and 11. The production was under the direction of Mr. Robert Sessions, speech teacher at Webb High School and drew an audience of an estimated fourteen hundred people, 944 from outside the school.

1966-67 was the second year that Webb High students presented a musical, and because of the success of Bye Bye Birdie, many wished that it were possible to have two musicals in one year, although time and energy do not allow it.

Backstage crews work hard to ensure that the musical goes smoothly. But here stage manager Steve Schmitt relaxes during a scene.

Assemblies Were Educational . . .

Assemblies

In addition to frequent pep meetings, several longer assemblies are presented for Webb High's student body each year. Some of the programs this year were performed by Webb High students — for example, the Teacher Appreciation Day assembly; the Christmas program in which the bands, orchestra, and choir performed; an excerpt from the musical, Bye Bye Birdie; and a preview by forensics and solo and ensemble contestants.

Among the programs brought in were a Wisconsin Idea Theatre group, an assembly sponsored by the Sheriff's Department featuring a judge from Milwaukee, and a visit and lecture from a University spokesman who told about smoking and cancer and the relation between the two. A young soldier, David DeMeille, a member of the Blue Spaders who had served in Vietnam, spoke at Webb. He was able to impress the details of war and nationalism on the minds of his audience when he said, "It's hard to say how you feel when you see a buddy's arm or head blown off," but I'm proud to be an American."

Former Superintendent Laurence Olson receives applause as he prepares to make a final address to the student body.

As a reward for their efforts, the boys involved in cross-country receive their letters during the Awards Assembly.

and Also Entertaining

Charlie Gill, an announcer from the WRDB Radio Station, is the guest speaker at the Reedsburg Homecoming assembly and pep rally.

To acquaint the student body with the sport of wrestling, several members of the wrestling team demonstrate various holds.

The varsity cheerleaders boost the spirit of the football players and the student body by preparing a special skit for Homecoming.

Types of weapons used in the Vietnamese war are displayed after a special talk given by David DeMeille of the Blue Spaders.

Awards Were Given to Able Students

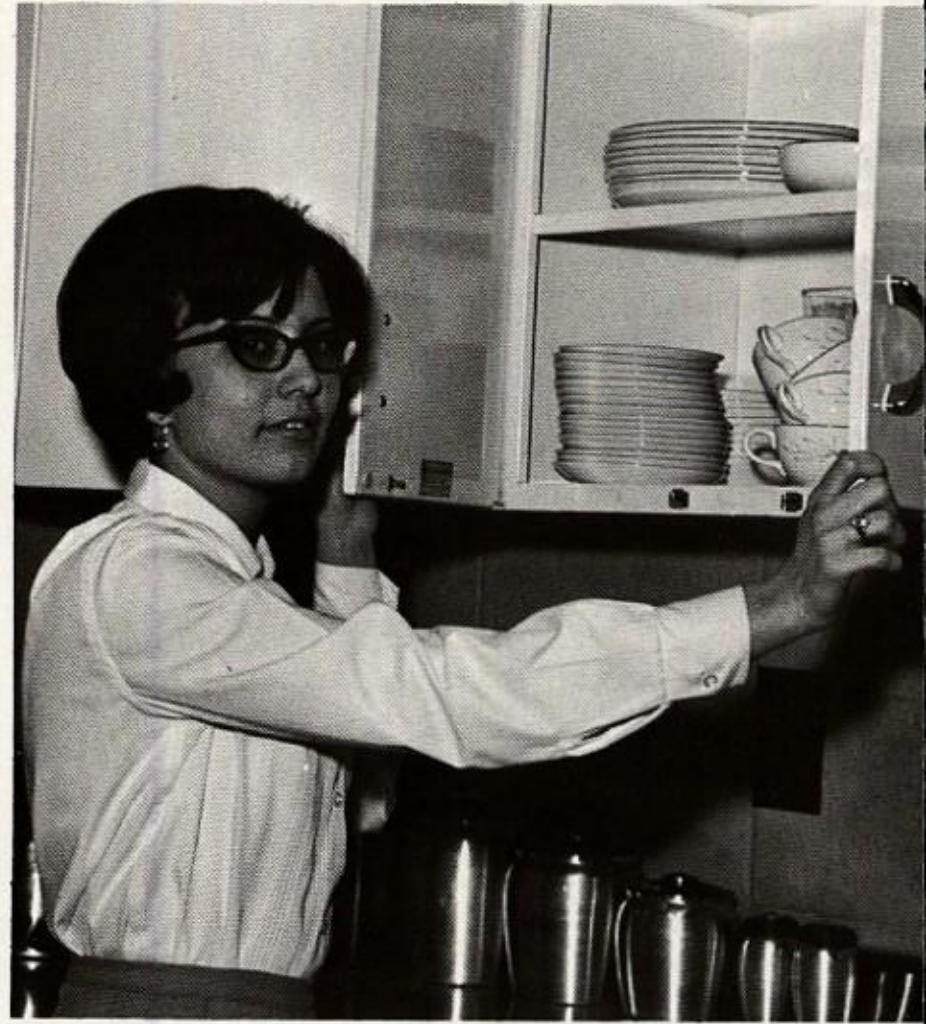

Awards

Each year at Webb a few students are chosen to receive special awards. Some of these include the most valuable football player award, the Betty Crocker Award, and the DAR Good Citizenship Award.

At the end of each football season, the coaches and football team of Webb choose one boy to receive the most valuable player award. Rick Ellett, who showed outstanding performance on the team, was the recipient of this award, which was presented to him at the 1966 Athletic Banquet in the fall.

On December 6 of last year, all senior girls in the home economics classes took the Betty Crocker Search for the American Homemaker of Tomorrow test, an examination based on knowledge of how to solve homemaking problems rather than on skill. Mary Kay Frayer was our local winner, and she had the chance to compete in the state contest.

Jane Krueger, who was selected by the senior class and the faculty of Webb, was the winner of the 1967 DAR award, an award given to a senior girl who exhibits the qualities of dependability, service, leadership, and patriotism. She too competed in the state contest by filling out a questionnaire asking the meaning of abstract terms such as loyalty and patriotism.

National Honor Society

This was the first year that the Herbert H. Webb chapter of the National Honor Society was a part of our high school. The purpose of the Society is to recognize and promote scholarship, leadership, service, and character. Each student who has the basic requirements receives a letter asking him to apply to the organization. He is then reviewed by a faculty council, and if he is accepted, he then becomes either a provisional or a regular member. The most important events sponsored by the society this year were the two induction ceremonies, the first of which was on January 8 at Webb for the junior members. It was a semi-private meeting for parents of the inductees and honor roll students.

One of the main objectives of this year's club members was to establish the Honor Society and to make it an important part of the high school. After looking for an activity which would be special to the Society itself and a service to the students, the club worked to establish a school store which was run on a trial basis during the fourth quarter.

The executive committee of National Honor Society and local businessmen discuss proposals for the new school store.

Webb Experiments with a New Style

Monica Fish, Paula Greeno, Carole Douglas, and Sue Brueggeman combine wits to edit one of the issues of the Webb.

Webb

Every week this year, eleven dedicated female journalists raced the clock in an attempt to have the Webb in print by Friday noon.

The goal of the staff this year was two-fold. First of all they strove to elevate the role of the Webb and make it a more significant student voice in school affairs. A special effort was made to present an attractive, yet perceptive, editorial page. A second goal was to effectively cover news events. In order to make this second goal a reality, the staff and their advisor, Miss Carol Larsen, felt the necessity to publish the paper every week instead of following the traditional two week schedule. The journalism class was able to concentrate on rewriting and editing since the ground work was done by volunteer reporters, artists, and typists, and by taking advantage of various high school journalism conferences, was able to incorporate new ideas into the Webb.

The staff will never forget the chaos that resulted from their struggle to meet the first deadline. However, learning from their mistakes, they became competent in handling the production schedule, accomplishing final editing of one paper while organizing the next week's edition.

Staffers Work for All-American

Sharon Lowery looks around at her fellow Gleaner members, who are busy working to meet one of their four deadlines.

Gleaner

As the doors of Webb opened this fall, the doors of room 33 welcomed all Gleaner staff members to the regularly scheduled Tuesday night sessions. At this time the editor, Nancy Bloss, who attended a journalism workshop during the summer at the University of Wisconsin, relayed information to the members of the staff and guided the preparation of the yearbook.

The goal of the entire staff was to increase the Gleaner's chances of someday becoming an "All American Yearbook". Achieving this distinction is a credit to the school. Though great steps were taken, the '66-'67 Gleaner staff merely laid the groundwork, in hopes that future staffs would continue the race to the top.

For months the crew worked steadily on page planning and preparation, but many last minute odds and ends were left unfinished until the final week before the deadlines. Completing most of their assignments under pressure, the students, having met a deadline, collapsed for a week. Perhaps these hours of tension stand out most in the minds of the Gleaner staff members, but even they are memories to cherish.

Aiming for a pinata full of candy and surprises at the Spanish Club Christmas Party was Fernando, this year's foreign exchange student.

Spanish Club

First, second, third, and fourth year Spanish speaking students and former students compose Los Matadores, which is supervised by Mr. Dennis Holt. At their monthly meetings the members played Spanish bingo and planned for their main event of the year, the annual Christmas party to which all three language clubs are invited. Amid Spanish culture and Christmas decorations, the Latin, French, and Spanish Clubs sing carols in the tongues they have studied. The climax of the evening is the breaking of the pinatas, one for each club attending. These gift-filled animals, a custom in Spanish countries, are broken by a blindfolded person who, with a crack of his stick, sends candy and surprises scattering to the floor.

Besides hosting a party, the Spanish Club is also a guest at the French Mardis Gras and the Roman Banquet. Through these festivities, Spanish Club members gain an understanding of customs in other foreign cultures.

French Club Worked For Mardi Gras

French Club

French II students look forward to joining French Club, for first year students are not considered for membership. One of the first orders of business for the organization is the election of officers, who this year were Dinah Bauer, president; Linda Sale, vice-president; Mary Fish, secretary; Kathy Koenecke, treasurer; and Geraldine Koenecke, club reporter.

Mrs. Mary Ann Durand and the officers undertook a new project in 1966-67. A nativity scene, imported from France, was purchased. During the Christmas season, the creche was displayed in the showcase. Each year additional santons or villagers will be added to the scene, as is the French custom.

This year the members of French Club were guests of the Baraboo French Club at a party. A potluck supper was served and an interesting film on French culture was shown. After the film, the students enjoyed meeting new friends.

The biggest event of the year for the group was the Mardi Gras, an annual festivity held on the night before Ash Wednesday. The French Club invited both the Spanish and the Latin Clubs to join in their fun, and required that all in attendance wear costumes.

The voices of Los Troubadours singing French Christmas Carols rang through the gymnasium during the Spanish Christmas party.

Latin Club

From the time of the Freshman initiation in the fall to the Roman banquet in the spring, Latin Club members gain an understanding of Roman culture through their activities.

This year the club was responsible for designing a show case, the theme of which was "The Roman Forum Affected the Whole World." All of the work was done by the third and fourth year class. The scene was the Roman Forum, a coliseum and temple made of sugar cubes. Soldiers were placed in the display to make it look authentic.

All year Latin Club works toward the annual Roman banquet held in May. Spanish and French Club members are guests at the banquet, and all who attend are expected to wear togas and to lie on the floor to eat in the fashion of ancient Rome, while the first year Latin students, as slaves, serve the meal. The menu, emphasizing the Roman phrase, "from eggs to fruit," consists of deviled eggs, cornish hens, stuffed dates, and bananas. After the dinner, entertainment is provided. This year it included a play translated into English by the third year class.

Library Assistants Helped Webb Students

Library Assistants

Annually, the Student Library Assistants help decorate the library at Christmas time. Here two of them adorn the tree in modern attire.

The Student Library Assistants, who are supervised by Miss Erna Graepp, head librarian at Webb High School, check books, keep materials in circulation and prepare clever book displays appropriate to each season.

On November 12, the group took a field trip to Madison and visited the State Historical Museum and Library, Moseley's Book Store and the Madison Public Library. They had a pleasant lunch at Manchester's Madison Room where they were unexpectedly entertained by a style show. At another time, on a Sunday afternoon, they toured a book bindery at Columbus.

Before Christmas the assistants decorated the library with modern designs. In place of last year's popcorn strings, cranberry chains, and gingerbread men, they used modern wreaths and Christmas tree bulbs of vivid colors and various sizes in unique arrangements.

The last few weeks of school the student librarians and Miss Graepp took inventory, ending a year of service to both teachers and students.

Drama Club

This year's newly formed Drama Club, which was created by combining with the Thespians, gave the student body more opportunity to work on plays either as actors or as members of stage crews. The main activities of the group were producing the school plays and the musical, Bye Bye Birdie.

As in the Thespians, a point system determined membership in the Drama Club. To be admitted, an applicant had to complete ten hours of work as either an actor or a crew member. At the end of the play or production, the director determined whether or not the student had earned enough points to become a member of the group.

The officers of the Drama Club this year were Peggy McDonough, president; Lynda Blakeley, vice-president; Dinah Bayer, secretary; and Sue Brueggeman, treasurer. With the help of its advisors, Mr. Robert Sessions and Mrs. Dido Nash, the club has emphasized Webb High's dramatic interests and recognized talented students.

A.F.S. Club Hosts Annual Variety Show

American Field Service

During the past year the student A.F.S. club's main objective was to raise money to bring another foreign exchange student to Webb High School next year. To do this the club sponsored the annual talent show in January, which gave talented teenagers a chance to perform before an audience. The A.F.S. Club also sold ice cream during milk break and after school.

In addition, the group participated in numerous social activities during the year. One important event was the party held for Fernando at his home with the Morton family. The purpose of the party was to welcome him to Reedsburg and acquaint him with the members of the club. He was given a leather camera case as a memento.

The A.F.S. tea was held at Sauk-Prairie this year, where our AFS'ers were able to meet other foreign students studying at surrounding schools. A new activity sponsored by the student club was inviting area students who had gone abroad during the summer months to come and share their experiences. Eventually our club hopes to be financially able to send a Reedsburg student, serving as a good will ambassador, abroad.

Fernando Ponce, the 1966-67 American Field Service student, originally lived in Cuzco, Peru, with his father, mother, two brothers and a sister. Before coming to Reedsburg, he had studied in Lima at a military academy. In August 1966, Fernando journeyed to America and became part of the Wallace Morton family. Kip was Fernando's foreign brother, and his two American sisters were Carolyn and Marilyn.

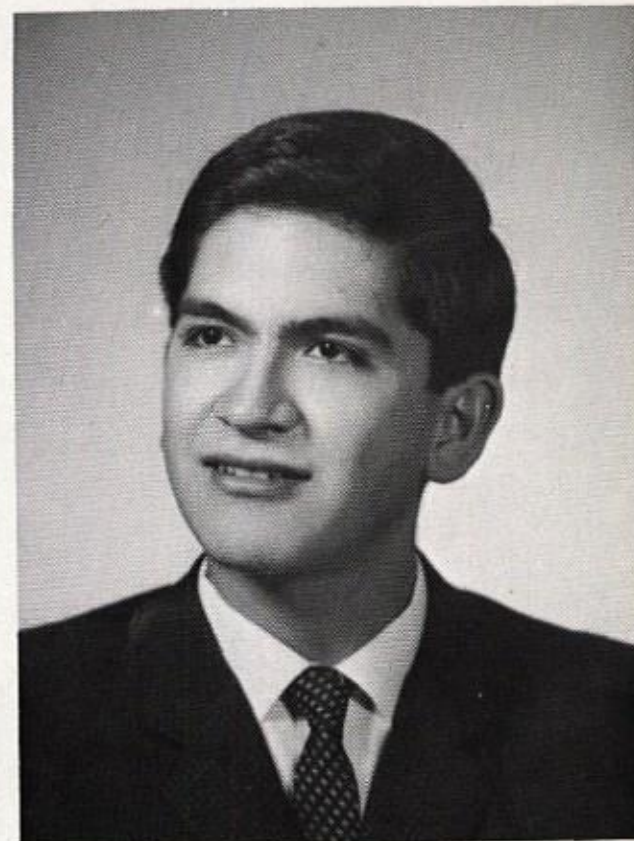

During the past year the students of Webb and the A.F.S. Club tried to make Fernando feel at home. They encouraged him to participate in the freshman initiation and Homecoming, in which he was an honorary member of the court. They also attended speeches and lectures which he gave to promote a better understanding of himself and of his native land.

By the end of the year, Fernando had become acquainted with Reedsburg and was an official graduate of Webb High School, receiving his diploma with the class of 1967. The entire student body and faculty had grown to appreciate his humor and friendliness, and realized that although he would return home, part of the Peruvian culture he had brought to America would stay behind.

FHA Concentrated on Homemaking Skills

Future Homemakers of America

This year was an active one for the Future Homemakers of America. Their activities were planned by the officers, Rita Biesek, president; Mary Liegal, vice-president; Mary Bass, secretary; and Janice Greenwood, treasurer; and the advisors, Miss Sandra Cuchna and Miss Mavis Rowsam. Some of the most outstanding included civic, social, and recreational projects.

Among the traditional activities of the F.H.A. were the Fall Rally, which this year was at River Valley High School and had the theme "Neighbors Far and Near," and the Alumni Tea at Homecoming for all Webb graduates. With the Future Farmers of America, the homemakers went Christmas caroling and enjoyed a banquet.

Bringing the year to an end was the annual spring style show in April. Each girl modeled her own handmade apparel, which ranged from school clothes to formal fashions made from materials of all kinds.

By attending rallies, meetings, and field trips, and participating in club activities, girls were able to gain points necessary for F.H.A. pins, which they received in the spring.

The Christmas spirit inspired the Future Farmers and Homemakers of America in their participation in the social aspects of fraternizing.

FFA Worked on Special Projects

America to work together, but they were obviously not interested in pursuing

Future Farmers of America

According to custom, the Future Farmers of America began the year with the Green Hand Initiation, at which the initiates were given an oath of membership.

Throughout the year, projects of the boys included ordering "slow-moving vehicle" signs from Madison to promote farm safety and learning about the Rat Control Project through a series of demonstrations of certain poisons and the sales promotion of a poison called War Fin. To raise money the club members sold light bulbs from door to door and operated the concession stand during the football season in cooperation with the Gleaner staff.

The F.F.A. members were proud of one of their members, Ray Schyvinck, who was awarded, for outstanding production, a $75 dollar watch and a golden ear of corn, which he donated to the agriculture department.

Under the guidance of Mr. T. R. Lathrope and Mr. Rudolph Geimer, the Future Farmers of America felt that all their work this year was successful because of skillful planning and hard work.

Candy Stripers Do Hostessing and Nursing

Betty Reimer, doing her part in the Candy Striper Program, helps serve supper to patients at The Reedsburg Municipal Hospital.

Taking care of linen is one of the many duties performed by the Candy Stripers, as demonstrated by Caren Schultz.

Scientae Medicae

Scientae Medicae is a club for all juniors and seniors interested in working in some phase of the medical profession. Planning many of the year's events were the officers, the advisor, Mrs. Irene Clauson, the co-advisor, Mr. Wendell Boone, and the Director of Nursing at the Reedsburg Municipal Hospital, Miss Beth Pugh, who encouraged club members to participate in the "Candy Striper" program. Each week some of the members did volunteer work at the local hospital, observing and assisting the nurses and substituting as hostesses. The stripers get a good idea of the actual work being done and at the end of their senior year receive pins to reward them for achieving a goal of one hundred hours of volunteer work.

November and December were the busiest months for Scientae Medicae members. On November 12, thirty-seven of the group went on a tour of the Madison hospitals. The visit included a trip to Madison General, University, and St. Mary's Schools of Nursing and a lunch served at the Wisconsin Memorial Union. They sponsored a record dance on the second of December, and on the fourteenth, held their annual Christmas party. Fernando, the guest speaker, told of his home in Peru. A pot-luck supper followed the showing of a film, "The Cap."

On "Career Day," talks were given by members of the various medical professions in this area. Their speeches were open to everyone, including students interested in medicine but not in the club. In addition to "Career Day" speakers, the club heard a guest speaker at each of the monthly meetings. The jobs of dental assistants, medical assistants, and medical librarians were explained and discussed at these meetings.

Advisors to the Scientae Medicae Club, Mr. Boone and Mrs. Clauson, supervised the club's trip to tour Madison General, University and St. Mary's Hospitals.

Popcorn, Pom-poms and Pep Are The

In the Pep Club's skit presentation of "Around the World of Cheerleaders", these two impersonated Chinese cheerleaders.

Pep Club

Pep Club membership this year numbered 150, the largest in the history of the organization. Each Pep Club member could be identified by her Pep Club pin and her great enthusiasm.

The main goal of the club was to increase school spirit and strengthen school unity by performing services that would promote support of Webb's athletic program throughout the year. To accomplish this, Pep Club initiated Blue and White Days and sold balloons. Other projects included selling popcorn during the football season, presenting skits for pep assemblies, and selling tickets for home basketball games and wrestling matches.

The club comprised the main core of the cheering section that wholeheartedly supported the team at games, both home and away.

Pep Club helped to create a student body that was proud of all Beaver teams and one that displayed this pride whenever their team was introduced. Because of their enthusiastic attitude, students of Webb found in themselves the little extra loyalty it takes to travel the long distances to many games.

Urging the team on to a victory, the varsity cheerleaders lead the audience in a rousing cheer during a basketball game.

Cheerleaders

Because their job is to be a source of pep and vitality for the home spectators, the six varsity cheerleaders of the 1966-67 football and basketball seasons practiced many hours to improve their skills and perfect their motions. By attending a one-day cheerleading clinic at Platteville, they learned many new cheers, which were used effectively by the Beaver fans. Bake sales were sponsored by the cheerleaders, and the money raised went into a cheerleading fund to help pay for the yell leaders' meals after games, uniforms, and other expenses.

The junior varsity cheerleaders also strove to create enthusiasm for the games. These girls were involved only in basketball, but like the varsity squad, they practiced each week for at least an hour to work out new cheers.

Wrestling cheerleaders were a relatively new addition at Webb, designated to support the grapplers at the many matches. It was these girls who worked to help bring wrestling into the spotlight.

In the spring, the cheerleading squads are given awards. The A-team leaders receive a megaphone necklace for the first year on the squad, a large bar and a letter for the second, and a bar for each third. B-team cheerleaders receive a small bar for each year they participate, and the wrestling leaders receive a large bar for their work.

Council Governed The Student Body

At a regular Loyalty meeting, Bruce Harms, president of the Loyalty Council, leads a discussion centering on student problems.

Loyalty Council members are shown decorating the Christmas trees that are displayed in the halls of Webb.

Loyalty Council

The twelve members of the Loyalty Council (three representatives from each class), who are the leaders in student government at Webb, build the framework of many traditional student activities such as Homecoming and the Loyalty Banquet. The student council tries to meet once a week during the school year to discuss current problems presented to them by homeroom representatives, and if the council agrees that the requests are important enough, action is taken. Students are encouraged to audit these meetings and their suggestions are welcomed.

In addition to choosing one boy and girl each quarter for outstanding citizenship awards, this year the Loyalty Council undertook a special project. The student congress worked with the Key Club to sponsor a Teacher Appreciation Day on which all the faculty members were awarded certificates of gratitude, the women teachers received pins with the school crest engraved on them, and the men received tie tacks symbolic of Webb.

Mr. Steve Koch, advisor of the group, said, "As well as serving as student government, the Loyalty Council is responsible for student-administration relations and citizenship in the high school.

This Year

Jane Krueger is pictured here, presenting her four minute speech. This original entry is to be informative and memorized.

Forensics

Students at Webb showed an interest in forensics this year; thirty-three signed up, each to compete in one of the nine speaking areas.

There were two new categories, play acting and significant speeches. The first, play acting, replaces play reading and calls for the free movement of the body and hands, but allows no scenery or props. The second, significant speeches, replaces memorized declamation and requires that the speaker choose a speech or a portion of a speech made by an important person in history, tell its background and its relation to the present, and interpret it. Entries in both new categories must be memorized. They were created to give the student an opportunity to interpret meaning.

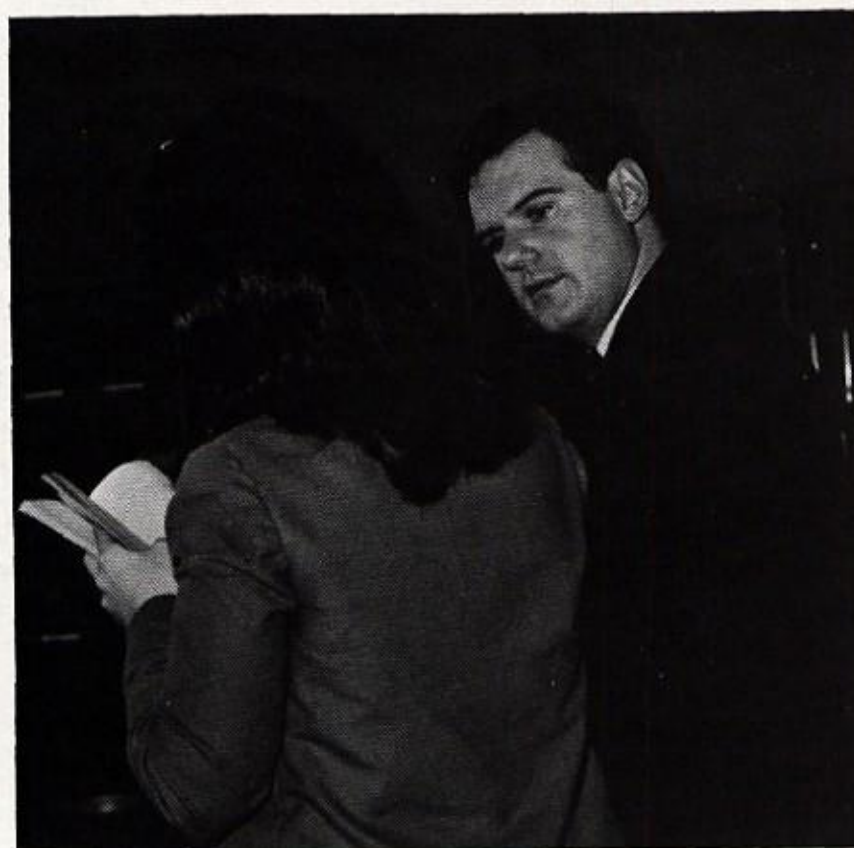

These two areas join seven others which include both original and non-original categories. The student entering reading of poetry or prose or non-original oratory interprets selections prepared by someone else; but in extemporaneous speaking, public address, original oratory, and four-minute speaking, the student writes and delivers his own speech or address.

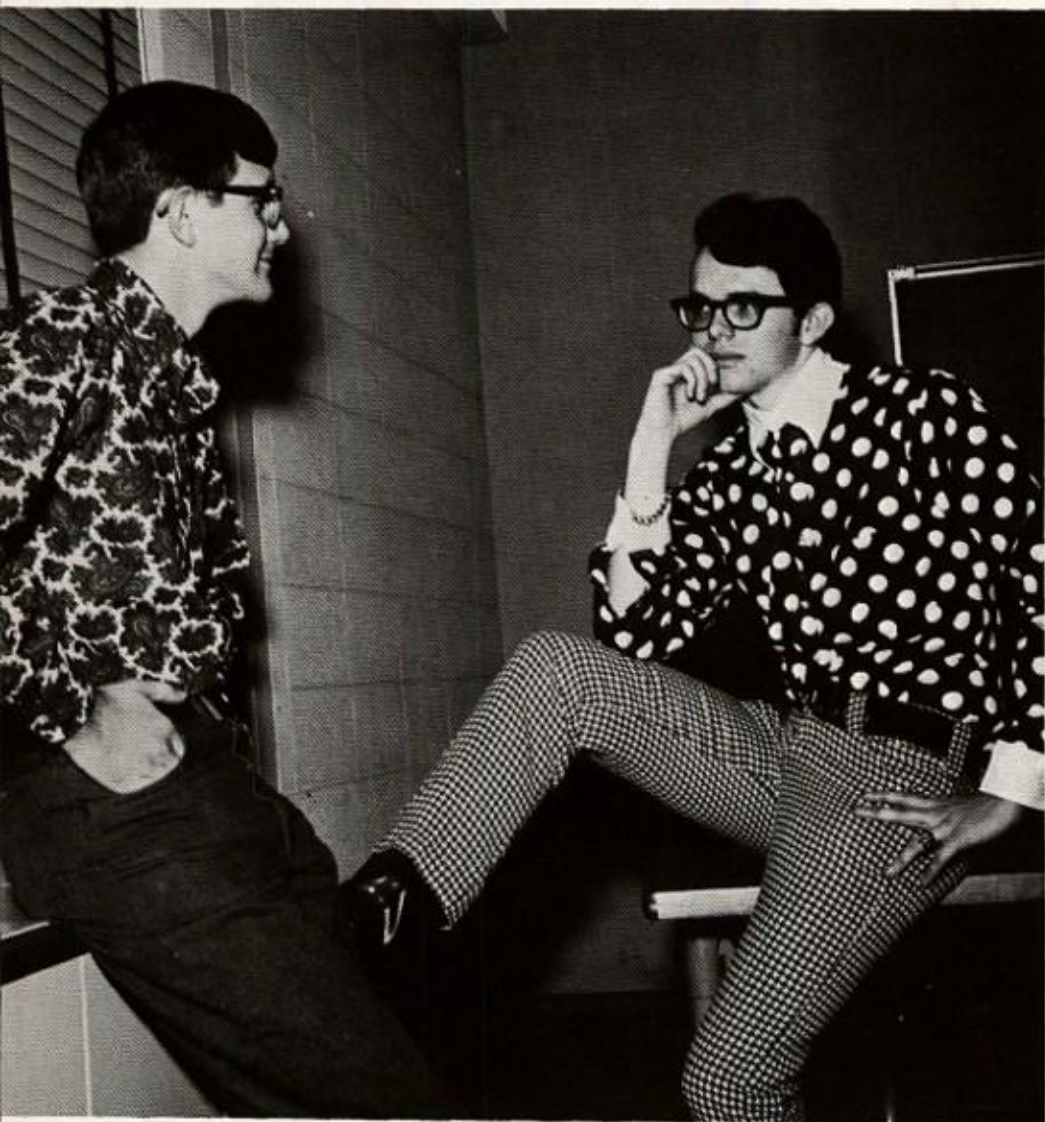

This was Mrs. Shirley Preuss's first year as head forensics coach at Webb; she said in evaluating the season, "Both students and coaches worked very hard in preparing for the local contest on March 1 and the district, regional, and state contests."

Forensics is the accumulation of a great deal of hard work, but Sandi Walsh is rewarded by a smile from Mr. Sessions and her coach, Mrs. Pruess.

Mr. Sessions, the coach for original oration this year, advises Sandi Walsh on her selection of Interpretation of poetry.

Larry Braun and Dennis Grover wear typical mod clothing. The popular trend for these boys is coindot and paisley shirts.

Fads 'N Fashions

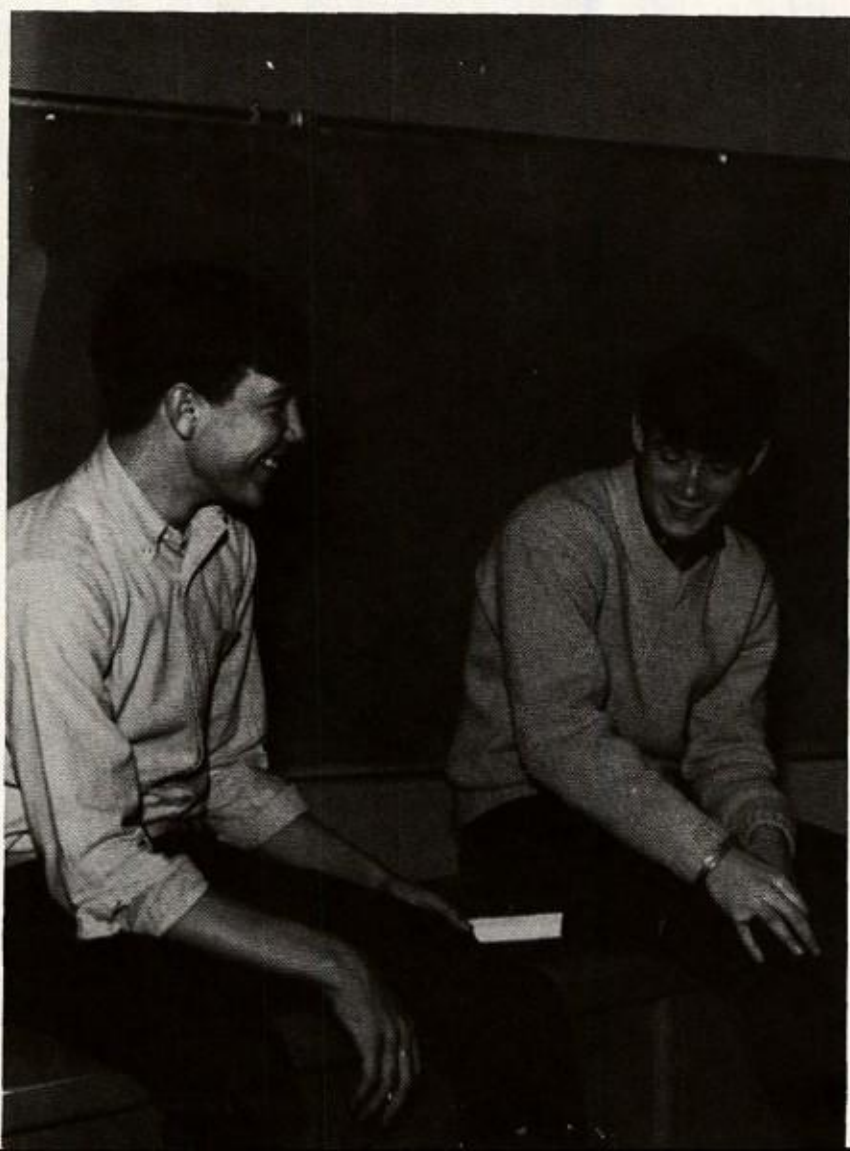

There were many new fads and fashions this past year, and faithful followers included not only many of the girls but also some of the boys as well. Topping the fashions of 1966-67 were hair styles, which were for the girls either long and straight or short and fluffy and for the boys long or short but generally combed down.

The trend in girls' clothing was toward color. Paisley and flowered print blouses and suits were popular. Color combinations in shirts and sweaters were vivid: blue blouses were seen under green suits, red under yellow, burgundy under navy, and orange under pink. V-neck sweaters and matching A-line shirts were also a must. Legs were often clad in patterned stockings; penny loafers and flats of suede and leather were popular footwear.

Clothes for the boys were also bright and colorful. Shirts were of paisley or coin dot prints in wild combinations of red, yellow, blue, green, and orange. V-neck sweaters over ivy league shirts and slim legged pants invaded Webb. Slacks were usually of denim, hopsacking, corduroy, or sharkskin; and the most fashionable footwear was dark socks worn with stylish loafers.

Bright Clothes Dominated Webb

Tim Sutton and Steve Whitney relax in a shirt and sweater typical of the comfortable school clothes usually worn at Webb.

Hair styles were both long and short this year. Pat Arndt likes short hair best, while Marla Brenner prefers long hair.

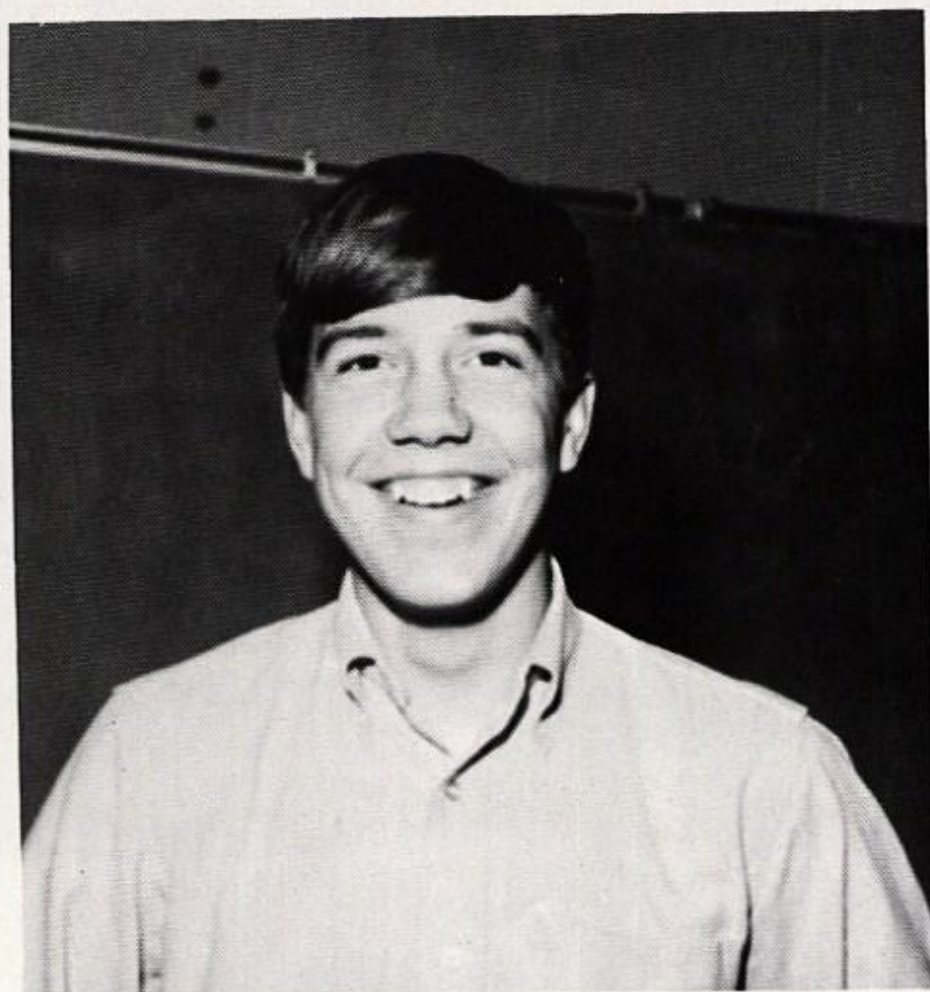

Girls wore both colorful and plain clothes. Here Linda Luetscher wears a V-neck sweater and shirt. Kay Zinn a print suit.

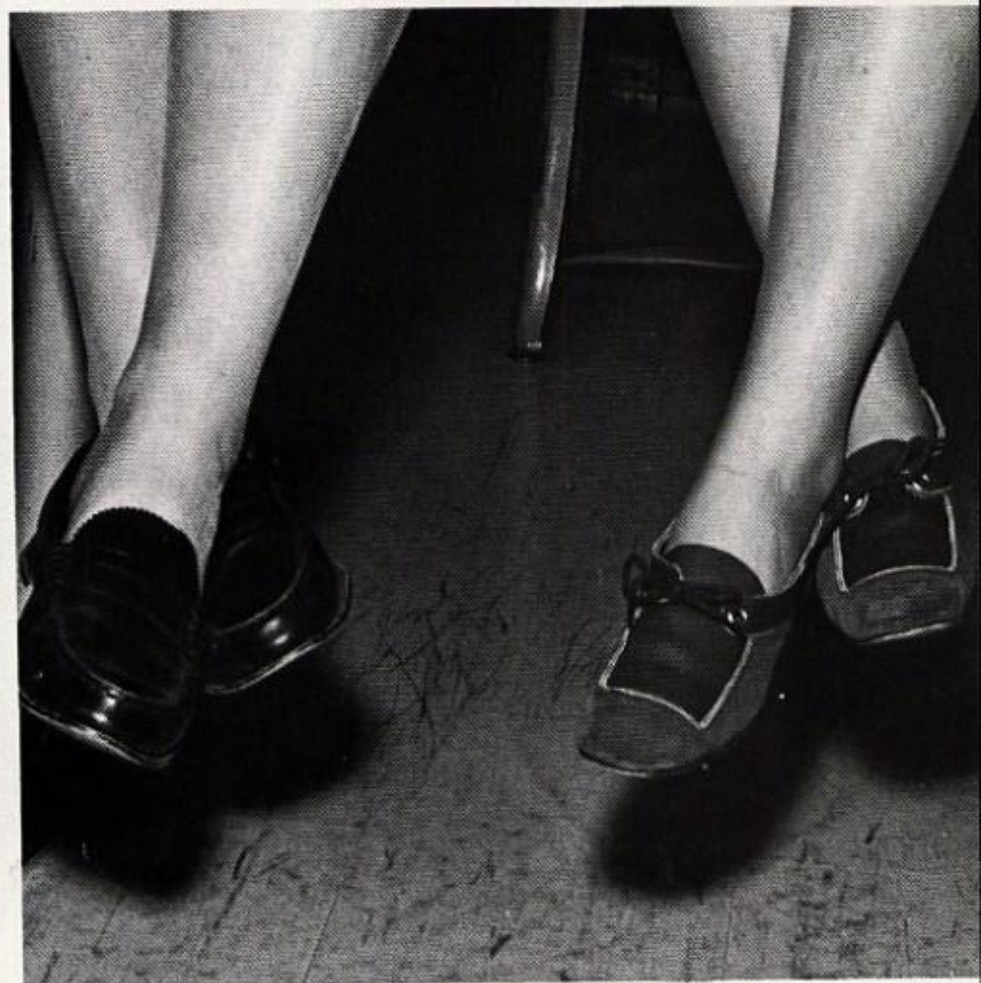

Sally Voll and Fernando Ponce appear in popular coat styles. Sally likes the pea coat, while Fernando chooses corduroy.

Paisley and Coindot Were New Look

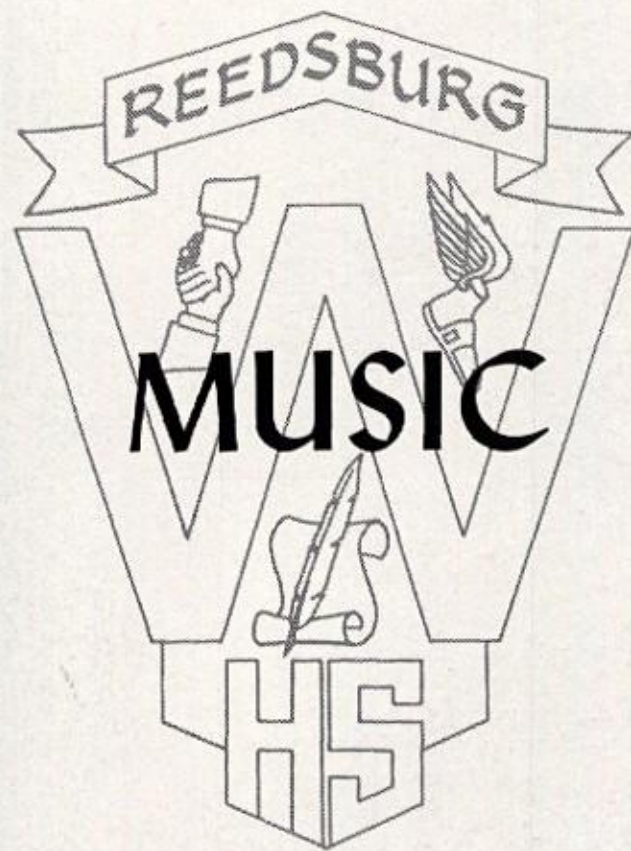

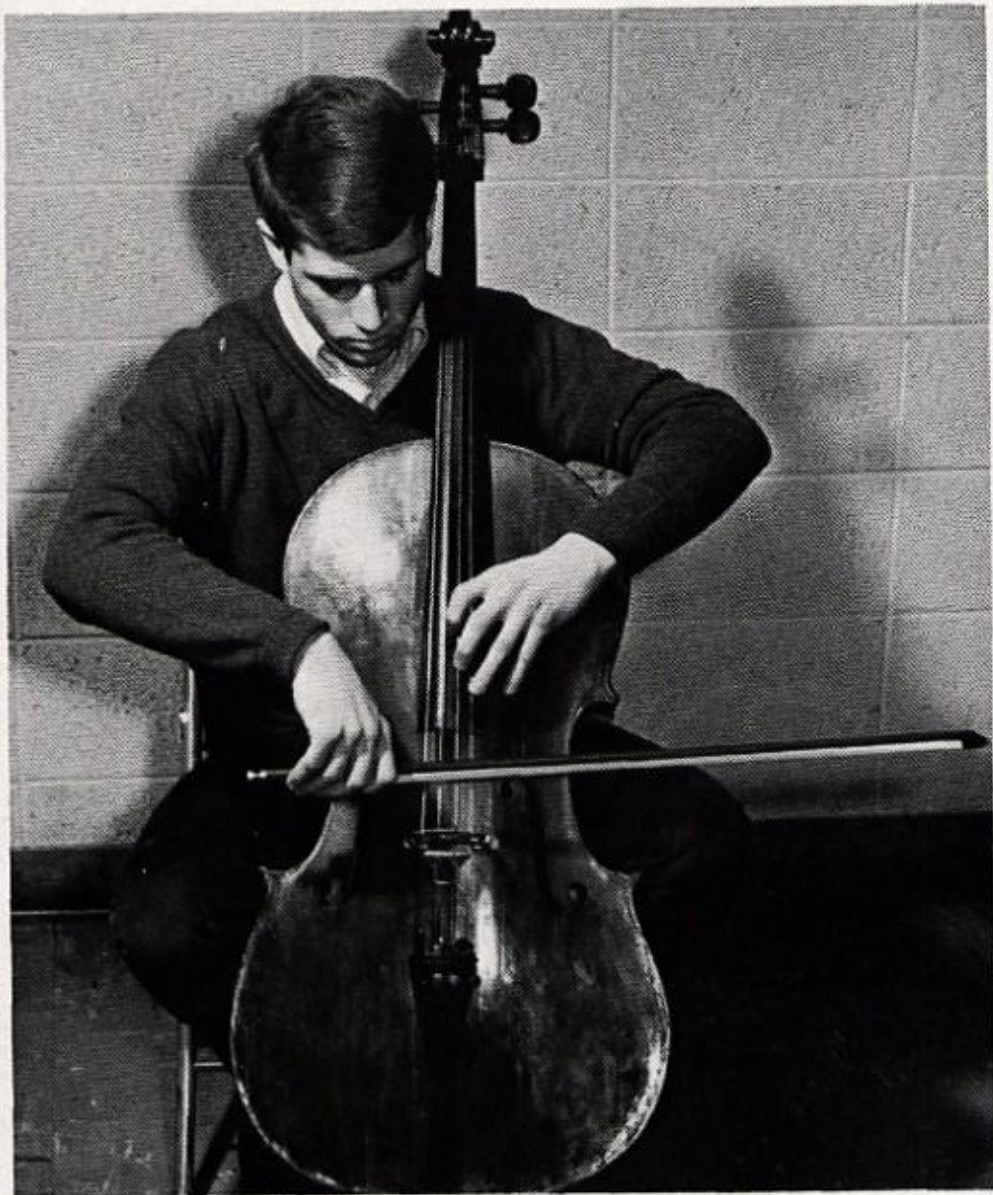

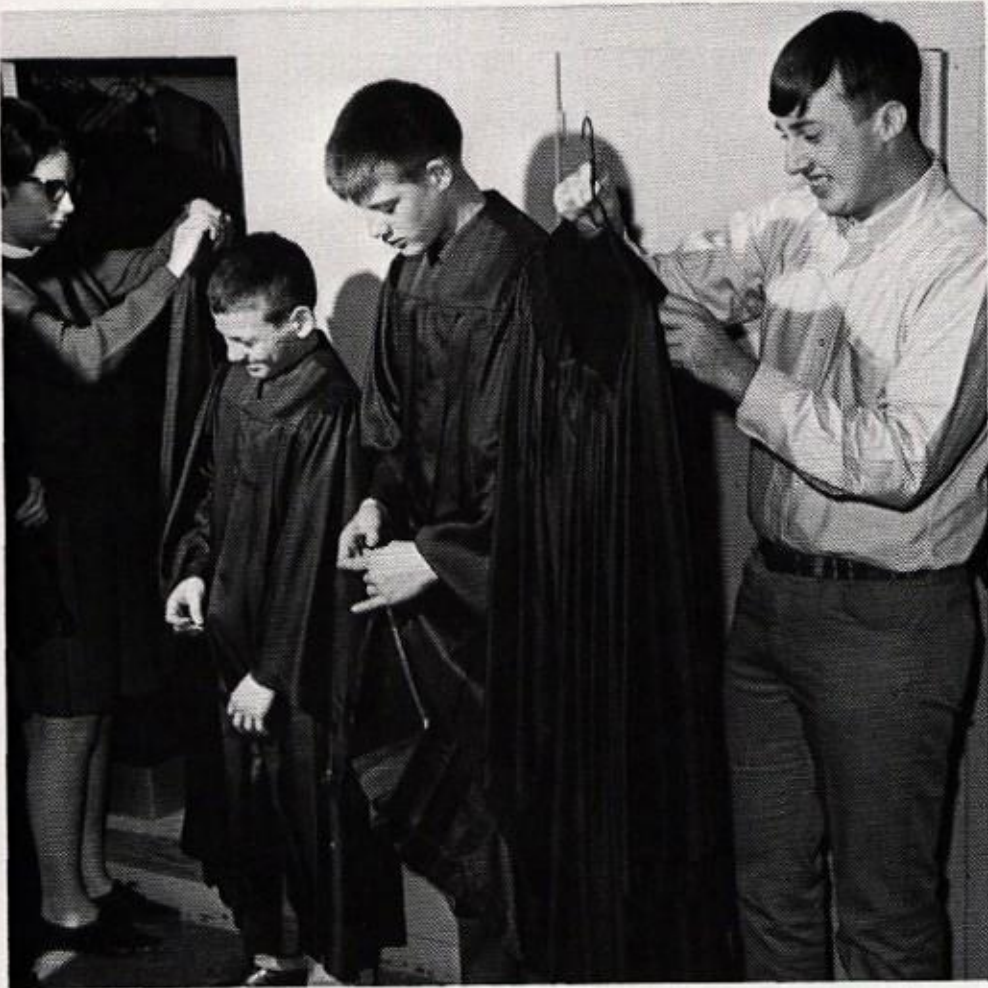

Tim Sutton wears one of the current haircuts for boys. The hair was long, straight and parted on the side.

Two of the latest styles of footwear worn by the girls are the penny loafer and the suede shoe.

Orchestra Performed at Baccalaureate

A familiar scene, found every fourth hour in the orchestra room, is Mr. James Found directing the high school orchestra.

"The goal of orchestra is to create sensitive people with a mind toward understanding what artists have to say. Orchestra allows students to learn strings, which are some of the most versatile instruments, and gives them the opportunity to play and perform full masterpieces in their original forms." These were the words of Mr. James Found, conductor of the musical group, when asked the advantages of participating in orchestra.

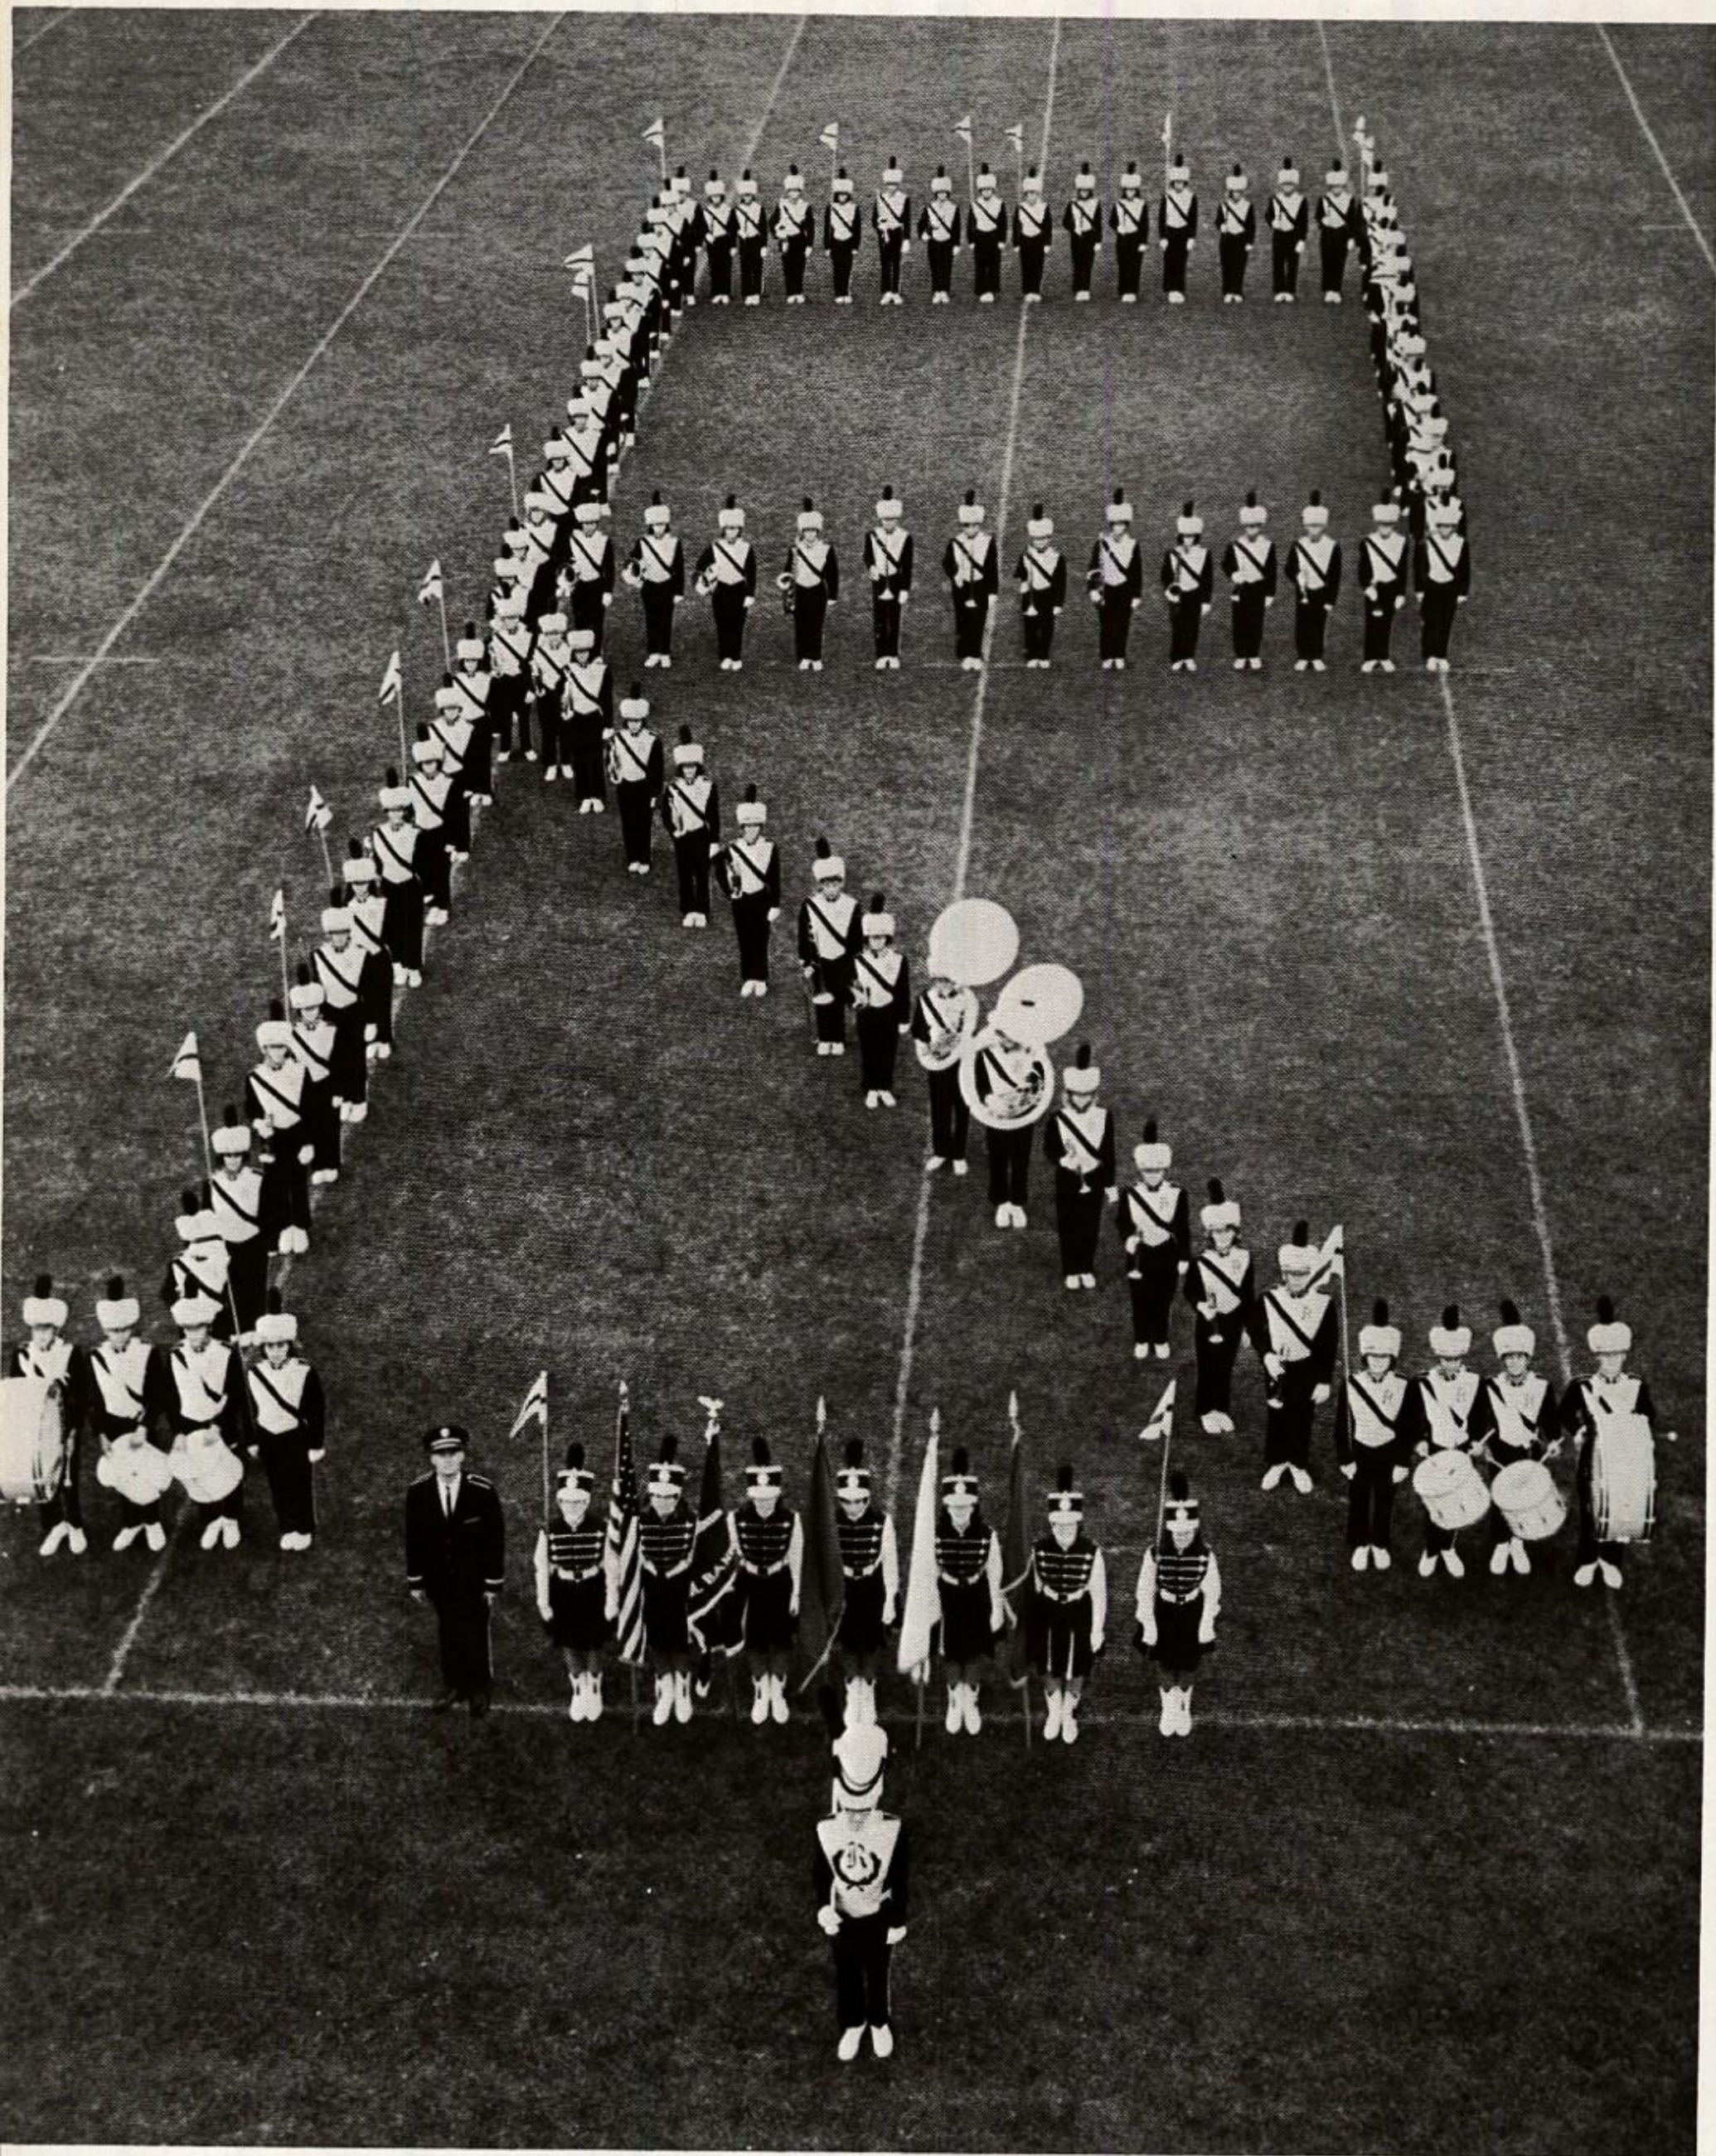

This past year these musicians performed at several functions, including children's concerts at Loganville and LaValle, playing pieces like Beethoven's "Fifth Symphony" and "Music for Royal Fire Works" by Charles MacLerras. At Christmas time, strains of "The Hallelujah Chorus" filled the gymnasium of Webb High. Orchestra night, following an afternoon clinic for strings and woodwinds, featured Henri Penois of Oshkosh University.

The orchestra at Webb is unique in that it is the only such group in the area; the closest school with an organized orchestra is Nekoosa.

The Bands Aimed toward Excellence

Preparing for a performance on the football field, the symphonic band members fix guide on poles and make other necessary adjustments.

Marching and Symphonic Bands

Aside from appearing in parades in the spring, the chief duty of the marching band was to perform during the pre-game and half-time periods of the four home football games. Its eighty-eight members practiced long and hard every fourth hour and occasionally after school as well. The pre-game show, "A Salute to the Colors," was highlighted by a lights-out rendition of "The Star Spangled Banner." During the half-time shows the band did precision drills which call for extreme concentration from each marcher. The Homecoming show used the band's favorite drill, the moving diamonds, and also included the special presentation of Queen Linda Koenocke and her court, for whom the band formed a heart. After this show the band received many complimentary letters from impressed alumni. For its last half-time show of the season, the marching band combined with the symphonic band to perform a presentation entitled "Horns of Plenty," which ended with the playing of "God of Our Fathers."

To plan for the Chicago trip in July, when the Webb High band will be honored to march in the International Lion's Day Parade, the marching and symphonic bands sold candy to help pay for some of their expenses.

Winter Concert Became Tradition

Concert Band

For the concert band, the busy schedule of the year's activities began last summer when they competed for the Governor's trophy at the Wisconsin State Fair. But this was only the beginning. Starting immediately after marching season, the band could be heard every fourth hour practicing diligently. All of this hard work came to a climax when the band presented its series of concerts during the winter and spring months, the most popular of these being the Mid-Winter Concert. Webb High's band director, Mr. Loren Wolf, said, "This year's Mid-Winter Concert was the best ever held in the history of the high school, and I'm very glad that it has become a tradition at Webb."

During the hectic weeks of rehearsals for the concerts, band members still managed to find time to prepare their selections for the solo and ensemble contest. Although this meant sacrificing much of their own free time, the dedicated bandsmen gladly spent many long hours in extra practice to come through with their usual excellent ratings.

Christmas, Spring Concerts Filled Gym

The Madrigals practice sight-reading to prepare themselves for their future performances throughout the year.

Choir and Choruses

As Miss Reba Humphrey raised her baton, giving the signal to begin, melodious voices, mixed with a few drones and occasionally a few groans, filled the air. Such was the atmosphere created in fifth hour choir and seventh hour girl's glee, but all of their practicing paid off, for their performances reflected time and effort spent in preparation.

In addition to teaching two classes, Miss Humphrey also advised the Triple Trio and Madrigals.

Among the activities of the vocal department were a Christmas concert held on the evening of December 18. And holiday spirit was awakened throughout the town when many of the students tramped the streets carolling the favorite tunes of the holiday season.

Throughout the year, the Music Mothers were entertained by the vocalists, and a number of students were involved in Choral Contest on April 22. As the year came to an end, the choir and other musical groups presented the Spring Concert and Baccalaureate, ushering the seniors from Webb.

Determination Was a Big Factor

End Doug Blakeslee goes high to grab this pass, but he has it knocked away by an equally determined member of the defensive secondary.

Football

The Webb High football team did not turn out the usual winning season this year, but several strong points were still apparent. The defensive squad did an exceptionally fine job of holding the opposition to relatively small scores. Noted for a strong rush, the defensive line was well-supported by a quick secondary, which held passing yardage to a minimum.

The running backs, most of them in their first year as starters, showed speed and agility. Coach Liebenstein predicts that these runners, with a year's experience, should make a good offensive core for next year's team.

The highlight of this season, according to the coaching staff, was the upset victory over Black River Falls. The team managed to organize the offense into several scoring drives to win the game, 19-7.

Coach Liebenstein experimented with two new offensive attacks in the Portage and Richland Center games. Both shotgun and "I" formations were tried, along with a platoon system. Coach Liebenstein hopes to find a winning method by the beginning of next season.

Special honors went to Rick Ellett, Most Valuable Player, for his performance on both offense and defense, and to end Steve Hyzer, named as Honorary Captain.

Cross-Country Was Introduced Here

Cross-Country

Red, yellow, and white flags bloomed on the Reedsburg golf course as cross-country became the newest addition to the Webb High sports program. A cross-country meet is completely different from any other type of running event, and is a new experience for both runner and spectator. At a typical conference event, as many as one hundred competitors sprint out at once; but every one of them is headed for the same goal—a narrow chute about two miles away. Our cross-country team practices on a 2.2 mile course set up around the school and Webb Park, while their meets are held at the country club on a hilly course, which is reputed to be one of the conference's toughest.

Coached by Mr. Dennis Holt, the team finished the year with a losing record; but, according to the coach, "the team did well considering the small number of runners with experience in distance events." Senior Jim Holzman was cited by Coach Holt as his year's outstanding runner. Jim finished the year by placing eleventh at sectional, one man away from the medals.

Because of the very strong B-team and freshmen this year, Mr. Holt expects upcoming seasons to reflect the ability and experience of the runners.

Basketball

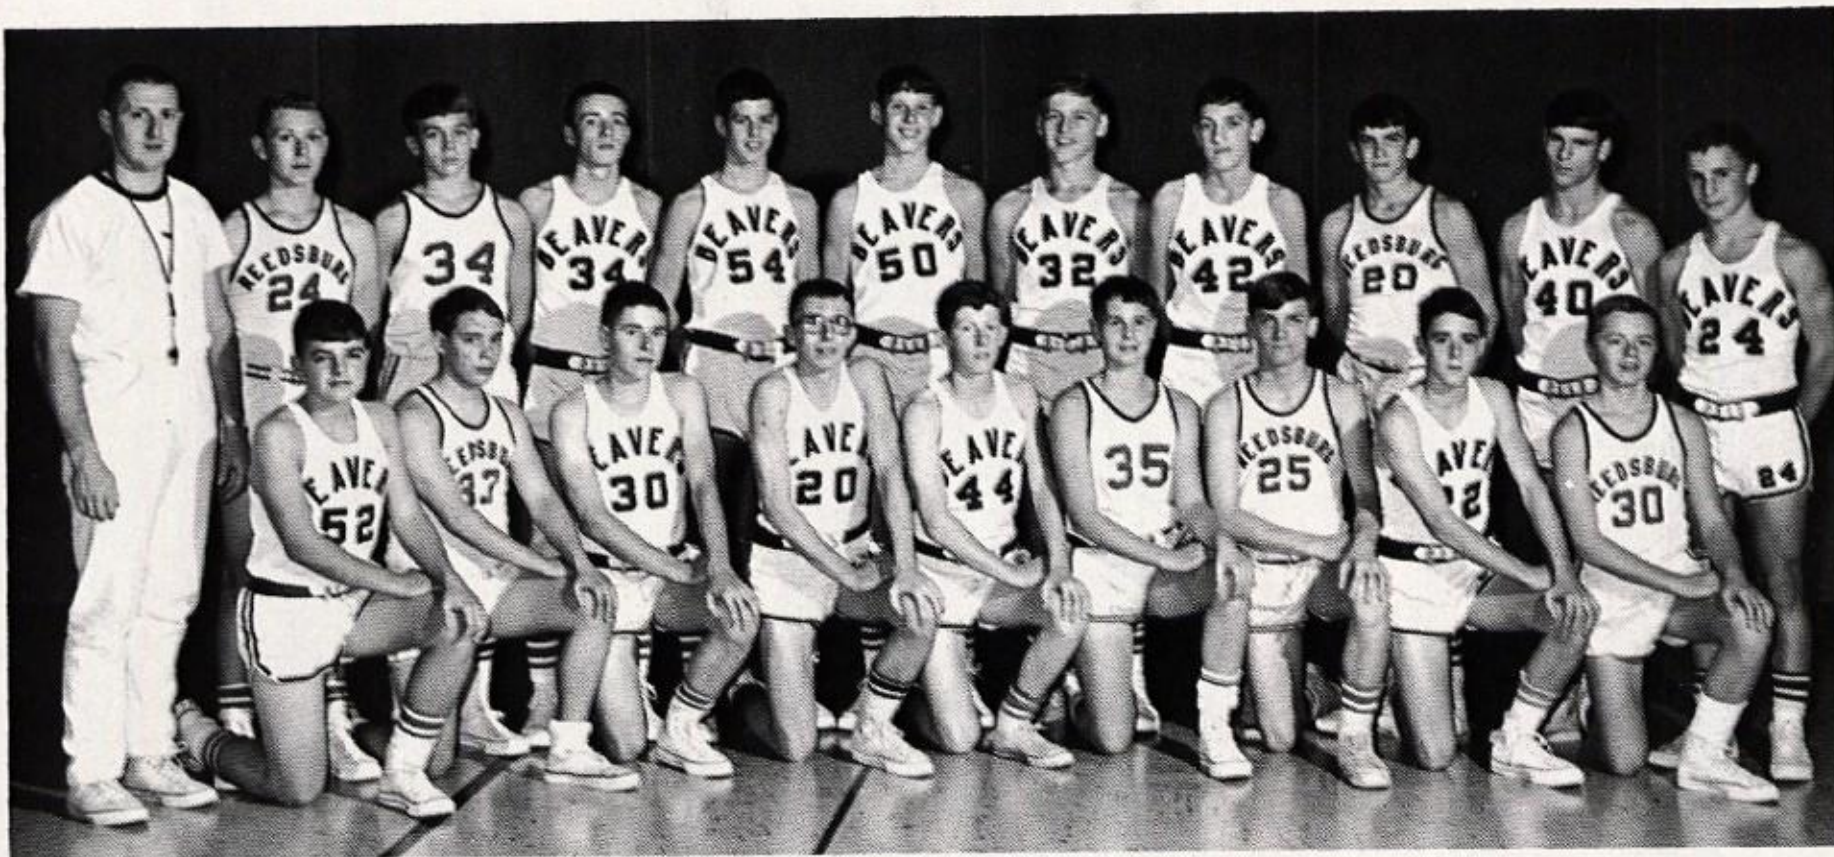

The Reedsburg varsity basketball team tallied up a 10-4 record, entitling them to share second place with Mauston and Tomah in the South-Central Conference. Two overtime games, in which Reedsburg fought hard but lost, were played against first-place Baraboo. In another exciting but non-conference game, the Beavers beat Edgewood, a Madison team. Bringing the year to a victorious close in the final conference game against Portage, Reedsburg tried to reach 100 points on the scoreboard but succeeded in scoring only 99. The starting five were Tom Bill, Doug Blakeslee, Tony Palmer, Lou Austin, and Barry Luetscher; Tom Geyman, Steve Madsen, and Gurv Romoren were also important players.

The season of Reedsburg's junior-varsity team was closely parallel to that of the varsity squad. They too succeeded in getting a 10-4 record, beat Edgewood, a previously undefeated team, and played two overtime games with Baraboo in which the Beavers lost by slim margins. The starting five were Marty Krueger, Chub Bill, Gary Kohlmeyer, Wally Schuette, and Rick Koenecke.

Both coaches, Bill Moran and Mike Liebenstein, agreed that their teams performed outstandingly and represented Webb well in the 1967 season.

In a practice match, Carl Schrank bats the ball over the net, but Kip Morton is prepared to return it.

Volleyball

Because there were not many returning lettermen on the 1967 volleyball squad, the team players had to learn and drill the fundamentals of volleyball. According to Coach Peter Krug early in the season, "By stressing the fundamentals, the team will improve its playing and therefore win more games. We have a great deal of talent in the inexperienced boys, and if we continue at the present pace, we will have a fine team this year."

At their first meeting the team organized and elected Ken Zuehlke as captain. After this the boys practiced twice a week to prepare for the games they played, beginning in March with teams from Mauston, Baraboo, Wisconsin Dells, Portage, Sauk Prairie, and Richland Center. The biggest game of the season was with the Loganville Raiders; the Beavers and the Raiders are rivals in volleyball as Reedsburg and Baraboo are in basketball.

Intramurals

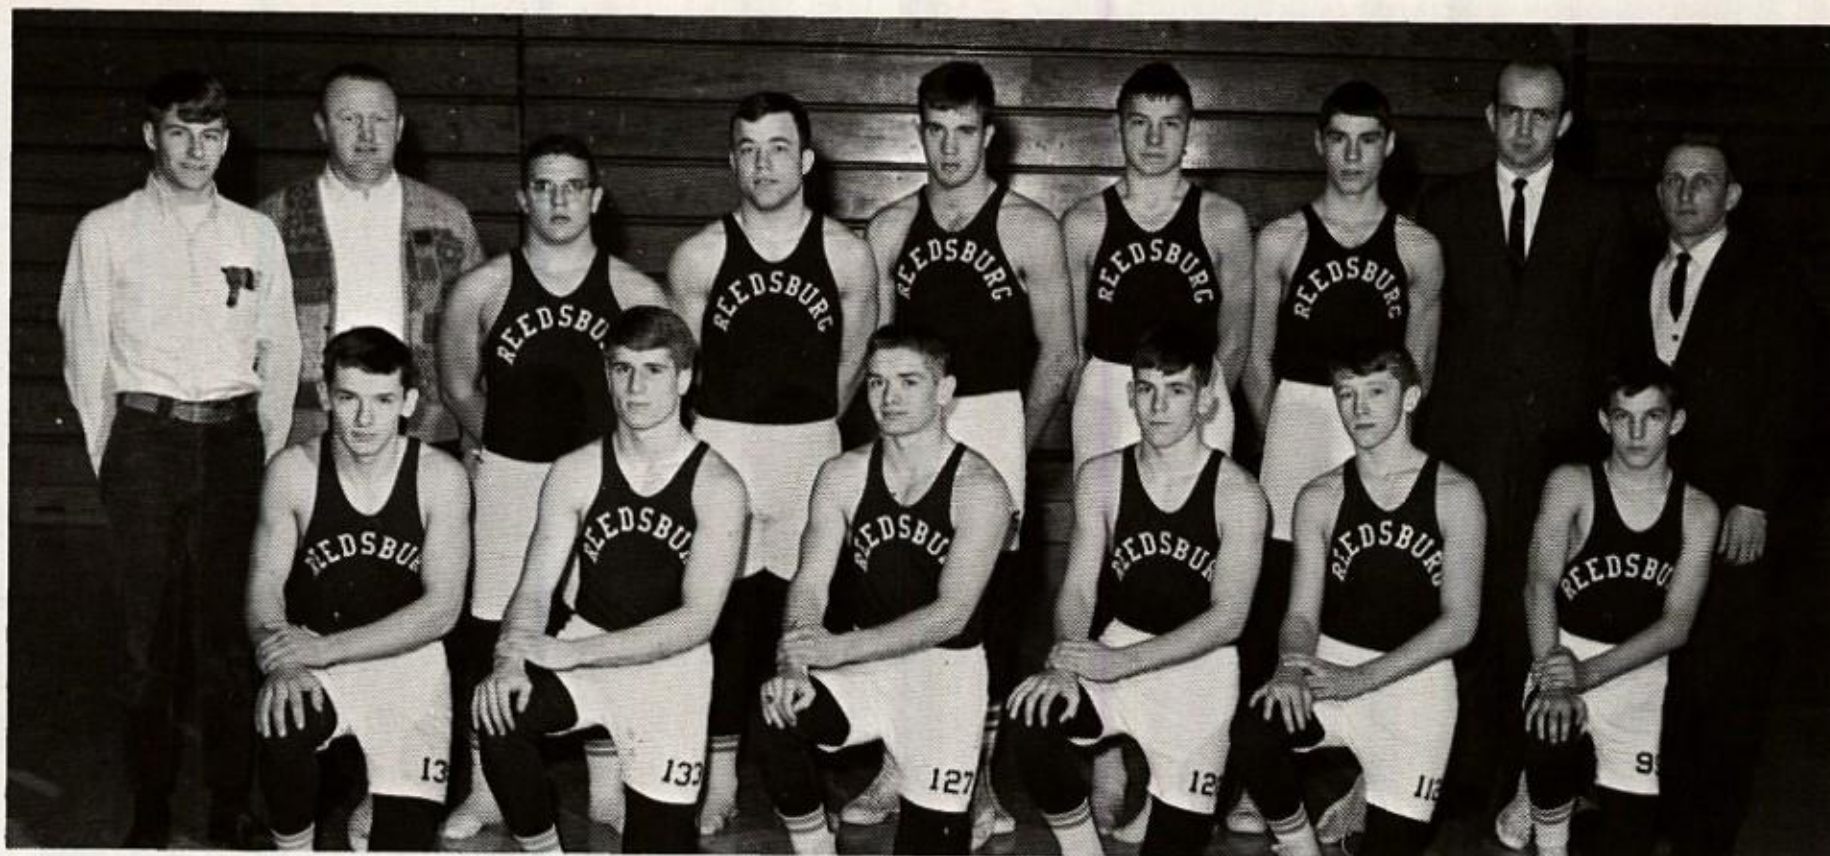

Intramural basketball, under the supervision of Mr. Roger Popple, is a part of the athletic program at Reedsburg High School open to all boys who are not members of either the varsity, junior-varsity, or freshman basketball teams.

All teams with the exception of one (a team formed by the basketball managers) were chosen at the beginning of the season. The first job of each group was to choose a captain. The teams then prepared for their games which were usually played on Friday nights after school and were broken into twenty-minute halves. Those teams not in competition had to furnish the officials and time-keepers. Standings and individual records were kept for the entire season, and at the end a tournament was held.

According to one of the players, "This program was a great success and also provided the boys who did not have an opportunity to participate on the basketball or wrestling teams some athletic competition."

Steve Hyzer and Jack Ophoven inspect the schedule for the intramural season, each sizing up his team's chances.

Lou Oleson, Harley Von Behren, Coach Pollard Caldwell, Coach Roger Grundahl.

Reedsburg Wrestlers Have

Wrestling

The Reedsburg wrestling team began the season this year by winning their own Reedsburg Invitational Wrestling Tournament in spite of strong competition from the Mauston and Berlin teams. Then, after losing their first match with Tomah by a two-point margin, the Beavers picked up momentum and built a winning record for conference action.

At the end of the regular season, the wrestlers moved on to tournaments. The Reedsburg team placed behind Richland Center and Tomah in the South Central Conference Tournament, but one week later they defeated the Portage team and won first place by a large margin in the WIAA Regional Tournament. Reedsburg won five individual championships and three second place positions, and therefore eight men advanced to the Sectional Tournament at Baraboo. At Baraboo the Beavers scored their third tournament championship of the year by defeating second-place Berlin by two points. After winning their championship matches in the Sectional, Don Briggs, Evan Mittlesteadt, Steve Schmitt, and Harley Von Behren went on to state competition at Madison, where Briggs placed fourth and Mittlesteadt placed fifth. According to Coach Pollard Caldwell, "Other outstanding wrestlers this year included Lou Oleson, Dwight Ziech, Rick Ellett, and Pat Walsh."

Freshmen Adapted to New Settings

Freshman Class Officers: Chub Bill, president; Debbie Luetscher, secretary-treasurer; Mark Bodendein, vice-president.

Freshmen

This was a year full of excitement, fun, and study for the freshmen of Webb; it opened endless opportunities and challenges for them.

They were officially made students of Webb on Initiation Day. Down the halls swam the freshman girls in their deep-sea diving equipment, while the boys walked daintily along in their mothers' high heels. At a dance following their day of shining shoes, freshmen became better acquainted with seniors. And after the price of Initiation came other good times: pep rallies, cheering the Beavers on to victory, Homecoming, and Loyalty.

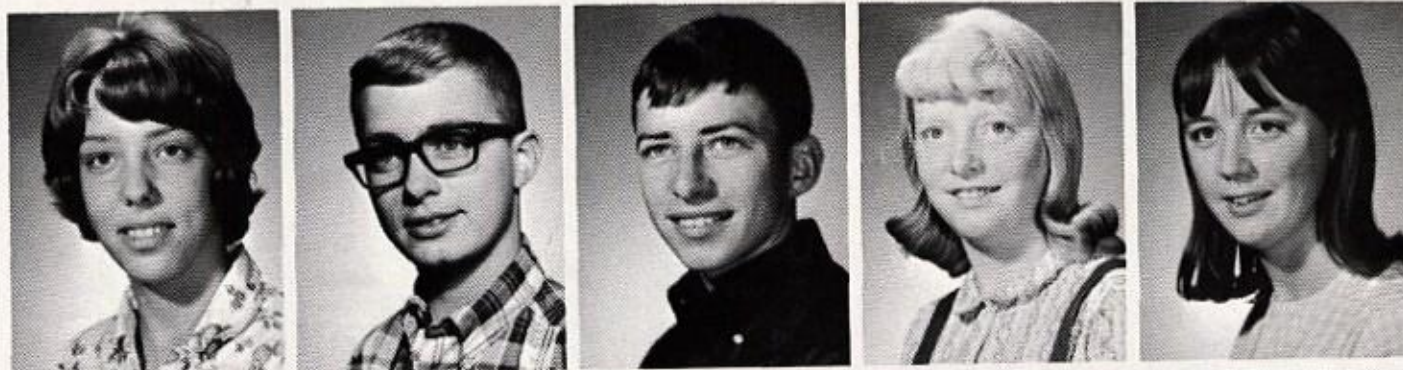

The thrill of that first Homecoming will never be forgotten. It was full of excitement and fun—from creating floats, skits, and yells to enjoying the Snake Dance and bonfire, the game which was lost to Sauk Prairie 7-6, and their first Homecoming dance.

A successful year concluded with the annual Loyalty Banquet, where the points worked for throughout the year were totaled. A memorable year for the freshmen had come to an end.

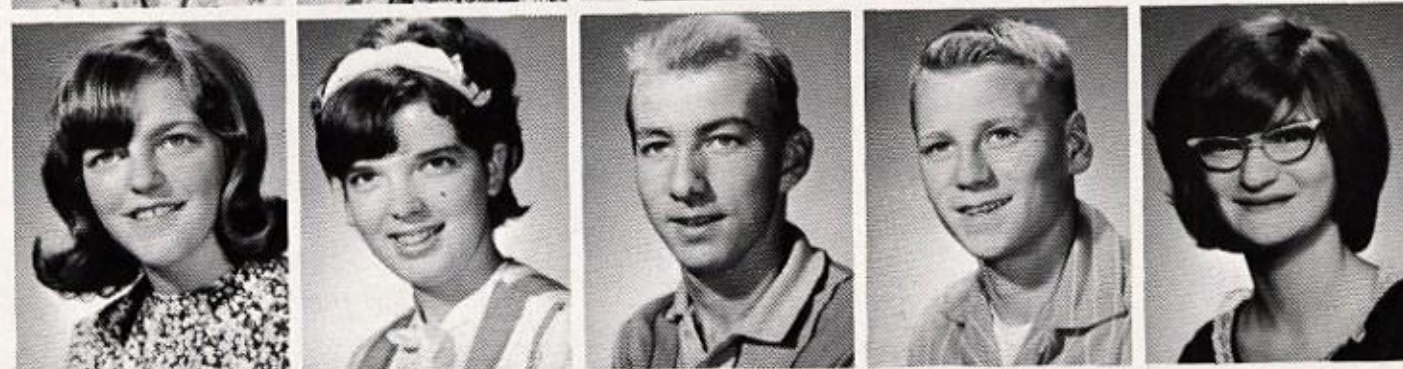

The freshmen worked out enthusiastically on the Webb practice field. Throughout the season they showed energy and vitality.

Sophomores Enjoyed School Activities

Usually the sophomore year in high school is the duller, but this year the class of 1969 has proved this statement to be nothing but a false supposition. Under the leadership of Mike Hine-man, they became one of the first sophomore classes in Webb to take first place on their Homecoming float. To carry out the theme of "We'll Get 'Em In the End", they constructed a huge eagle, with moving wings, blinking eyes, and realistic sound effects. Following this immense bird was a Beaver football player in a moving duck blind shooting at the Sauk Prairie mascot.

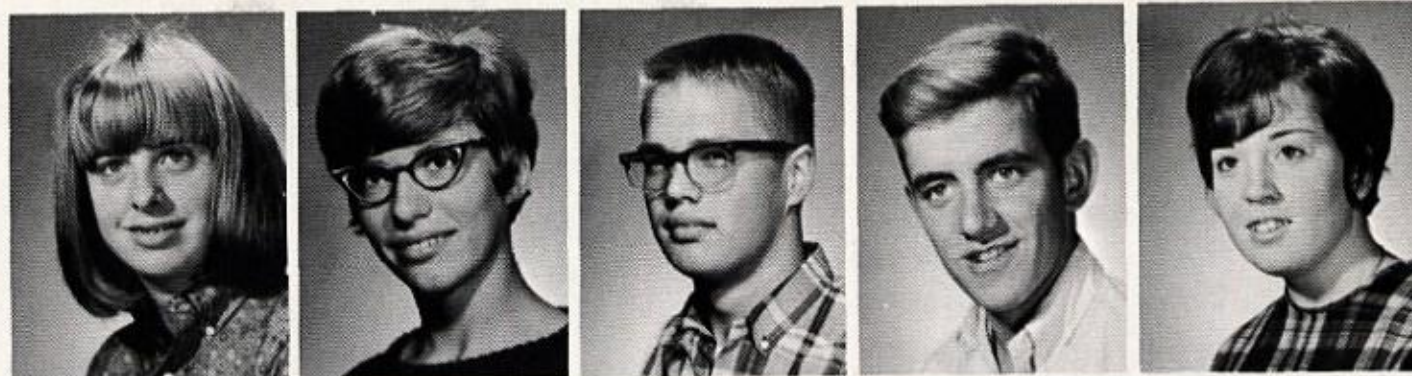

Sophomore ingenuity, originality, and enthusiasm didn't end with Homecoming, but was demonstrated throughout the entire year. Many sophomore girls aided the Pep Club by painting signs, presenting skits, and cheering the Beavers on to victory, while the boys were given the chance to demonstrate their spirit on the gridiron.

With spring came the end of their lives as underclassmen, but not before they once again turned out in full force to make this year's Loyalty a success. This final chapter proved that they were worthy of becoming Webb upperclassmen.

The sophomore class puts finishing touches on their first place float Thursday night. The float, featuring a giant Sauk Prairie Eagle, showed many hours of work and ingenuity.

Spotlight Fell on Junior Prom

Class Officers Barry Luetscher, Linda Sale, Jim Feuerstein

Juniors

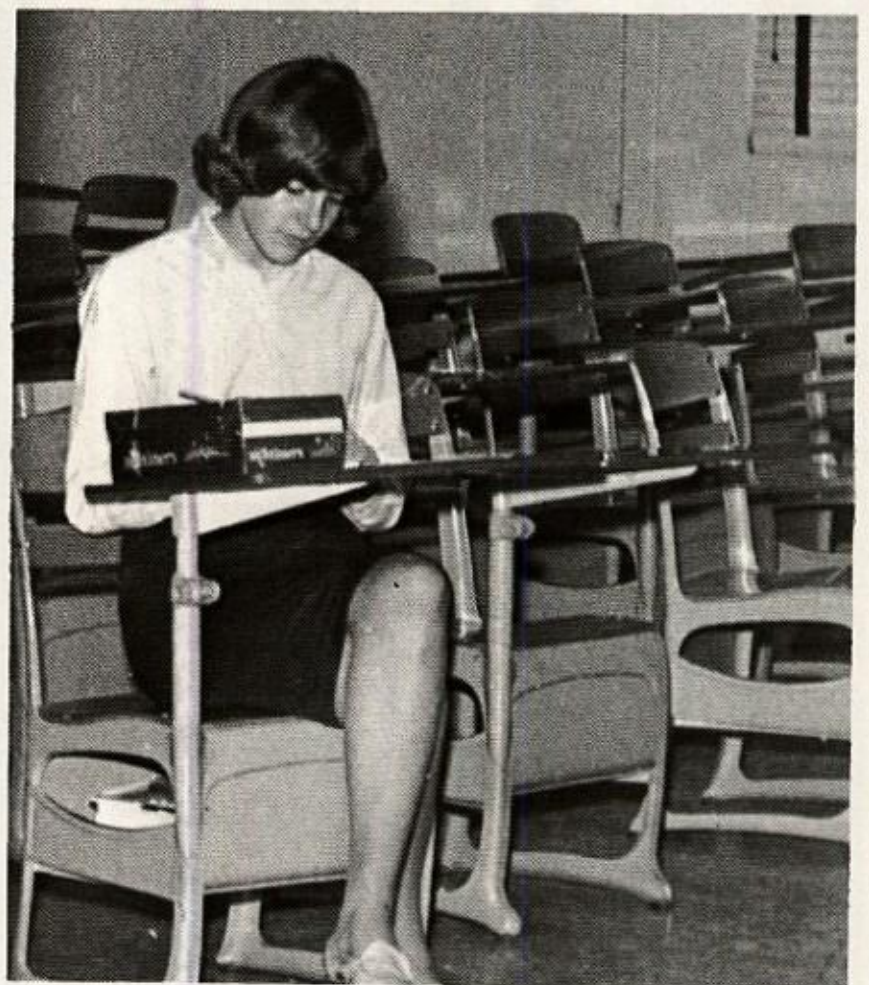

The juniors, now upperclassmen at Webb, can be proud of the three years behind them. This last year, especially, was probably their biggest. Their studies were harder, their activities more demanding, and the competition keener.

The main events for the juniors took place in the spring and fall of the year. They happily received their class rings, which will always symbolize the class.

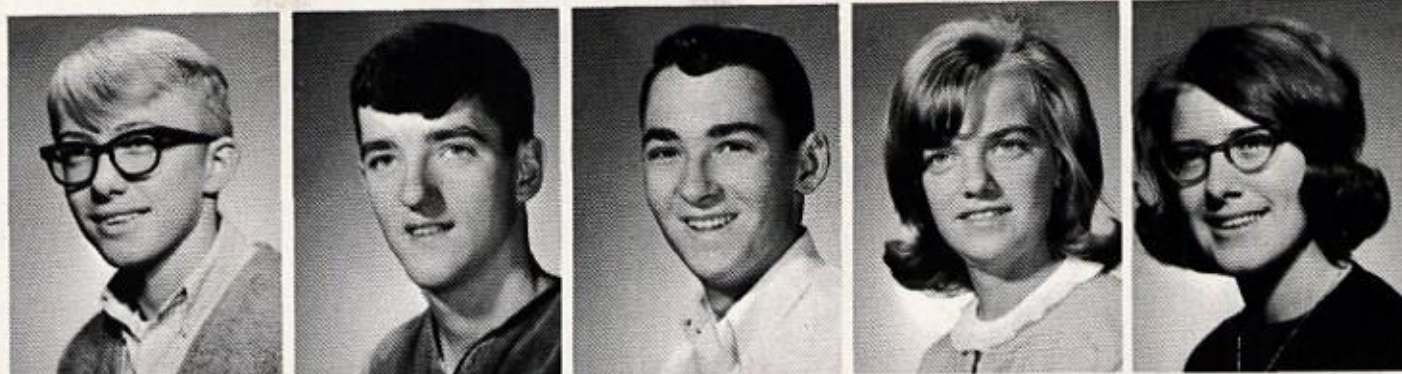

Homecoming was a week of hectic activity. A great deal of work was done on the float while hours of practice were spent on the skit. Participants in the band worked diligently, and the entire class combined its efforts in the yell. The juniors were rewarded for their work by taking first place in the skit. Strengthening their record, the industrious class showed imagination and ingenuity in the decorations for the Junior Prom, the highlight of the year.

Now, three years have passed, and there is only one short year for the class of '68 to enjoy old friendships, activities, teachers, and high school.

Seniors Aimed Toward High Goals

Class officers: Steve Hyzer, president; Jane Krueger, secretary; Ken Zuehlke, vice-president.

Seniors

"This is a time to remember." How many times the senior class of 1967 was reminded of this. One was the night members of the class wheeled "Chuck", the senior class papier-mache mascot for the float, into the bus garage before the Homecoming parade. Homecoming '67 was the fourth and final homecoming for the seniors, and it was the one that they had planned for and anticipated the most. The other annual event that graduates are not likely to forget is the Loyalty Banquet. Loyalty grows to be very meaningful for a student of Webb, and by the time he is a senior he is strongly aware that while the desire to win is important, the cooperation among fellow students is vital.

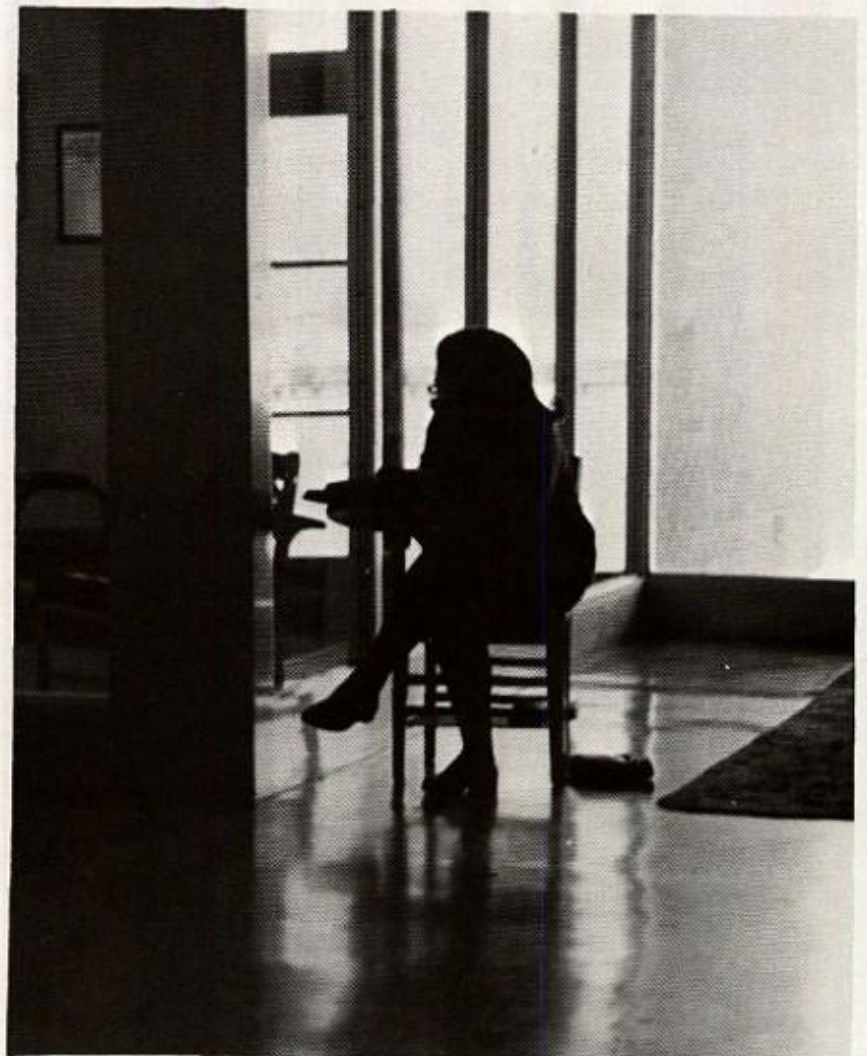

New projects of the seniors included trading class pictures and name cards, enabling them to gain reminders of friends they would soon be leaving.

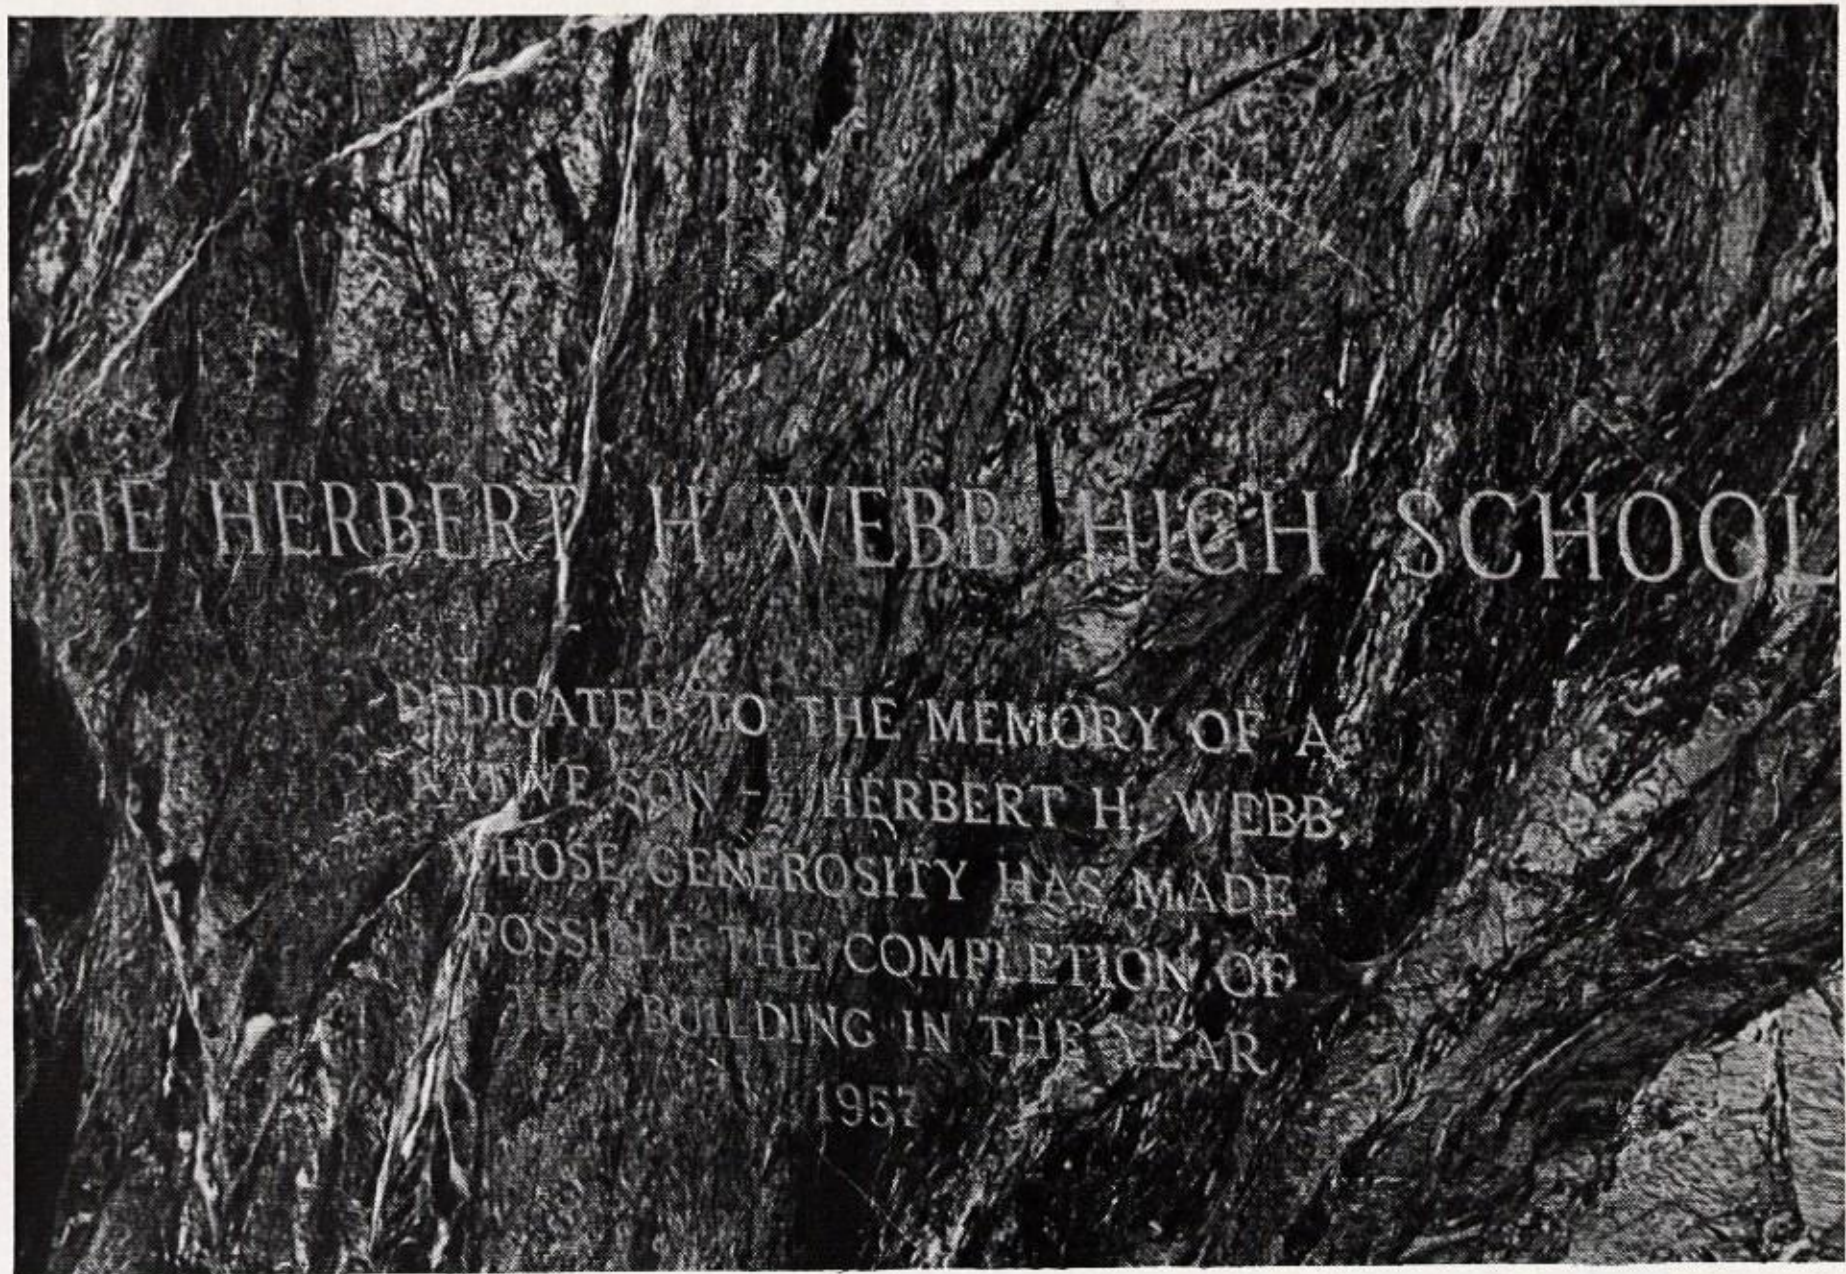

One of the most important days in the life of a Webb High student is graduation. The seniors looked upon the last four years as "a time to remember" when they received their diplomas and sang the Alma Mater for the last time:

Let our voices, loudly ringing,
Echo far and near!
Songs of praise thy children singing
To thy mem'ry dear.

Alma Mater! Alma Mater!
Tender, fair and true!
Grateful sons, with love unfailing,
All our vows renew.

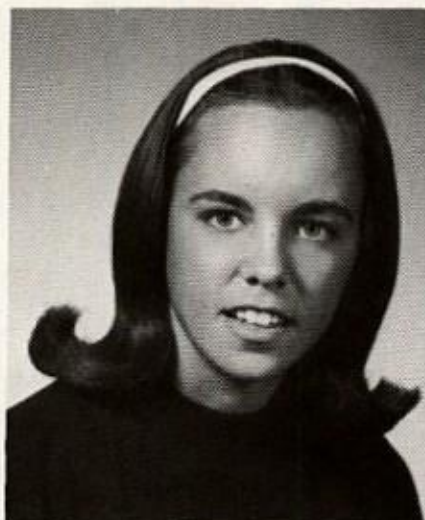

Senior hall monitor Sandi Walsh studies between tasks such as examining student passes and carrying messages.

The Senior boys get a rough workout in physical education building up their endurance and stamina and making muscles.

Carol Pearson, a volunteer candy striper at the hospital, checks the linens in the closet as one of her many duties.

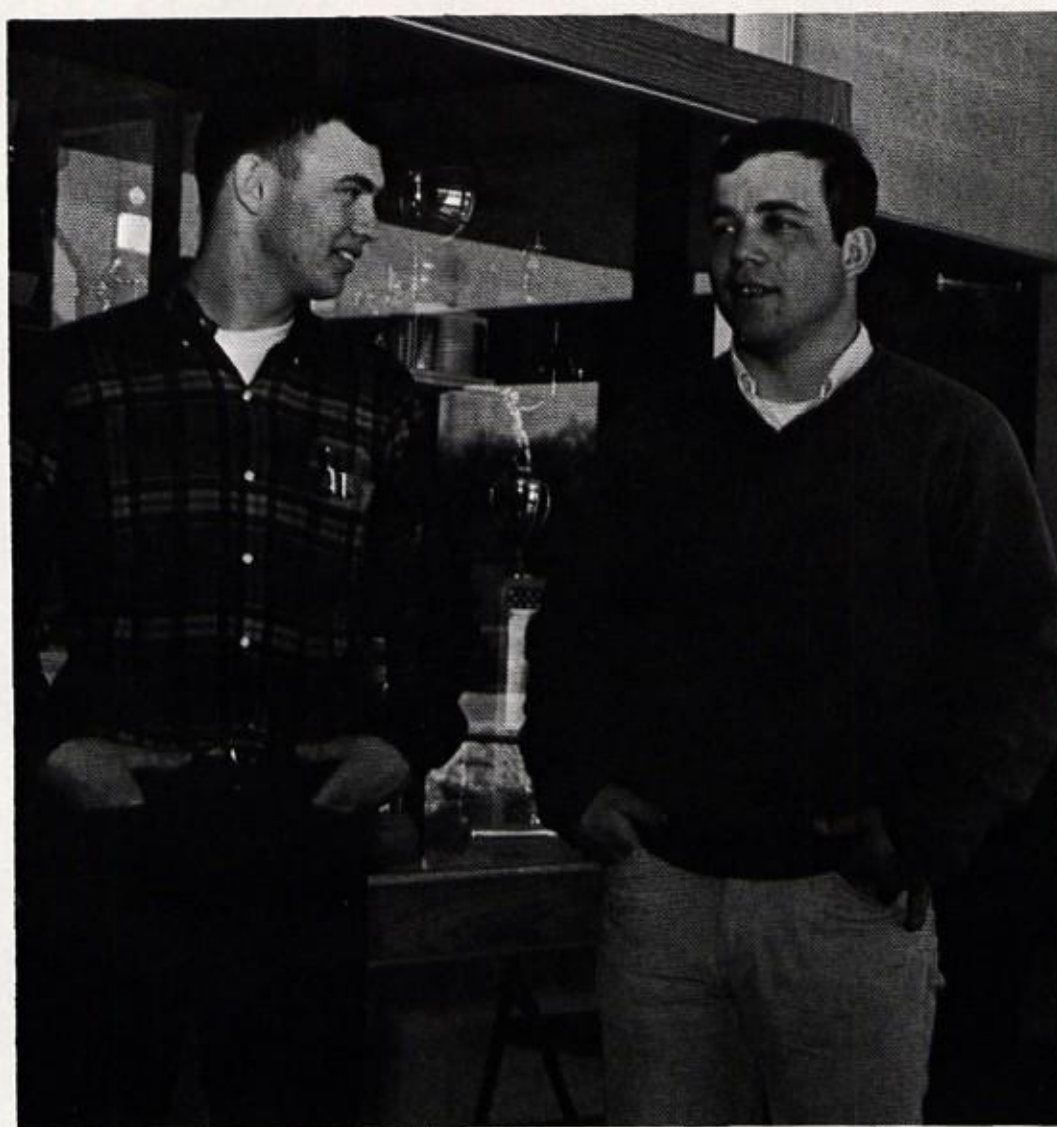

A familiar couple in the halls of Webb. Liz Gates and Gary Mielke were just one pair of the seniors that dated steadily.

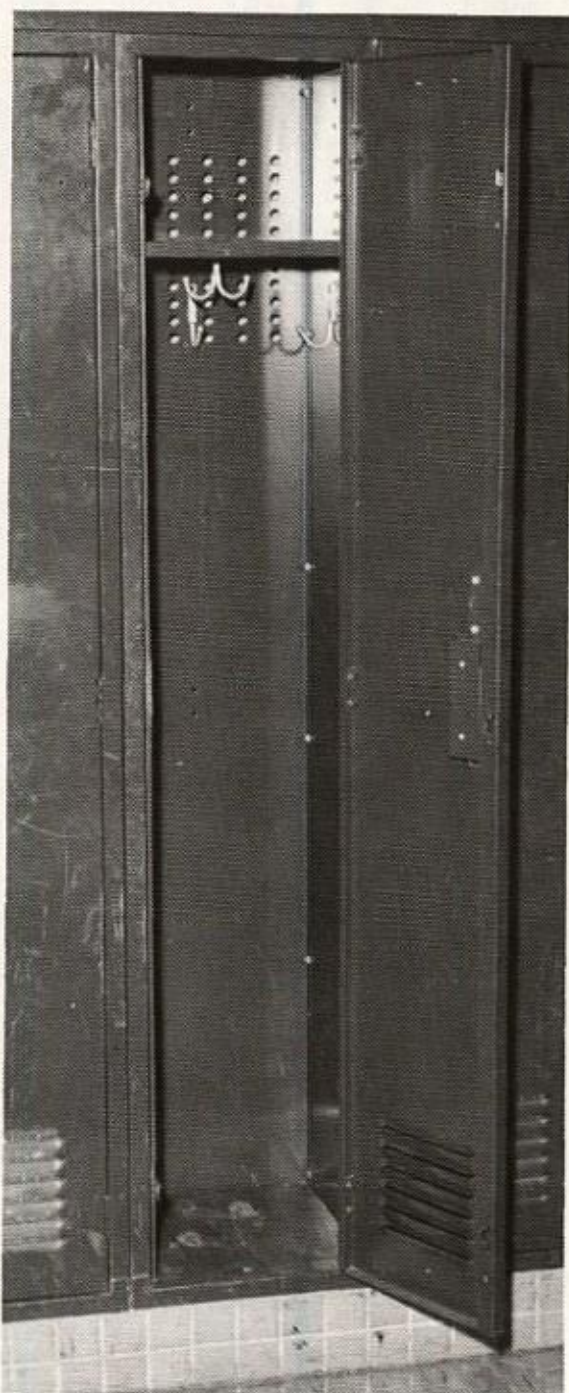

Two Senior girls, Peggy Deyo and Monica Fish, model their lovely outfits as they compete for Miss Sewyer Queen.

Sandi Walsh is found to be giving the feminine touch to a display of early Greek and Roman buildings constructed by the members of the Latin Club. Each scene depicted a type of housing and some of the men who inhabited them.

Two Senior boys, Steve Hyzer and Rick Ellett, take a moment's rest to talk over the past year.

The staff of the 1967 Gleaner has tried in this book to record the events of the past year which have meant the most to you, the students of Webb High School. We hope that the trademarks of Webb we have shown in the preceding pages will always bring back your happiest memories of the 1966-67 school year.

A special thank-you goes to Mr. Robert Graf, our yearbook representative; Mr. Robert Fehrenbach, Mr. Robert Harper, Mike Hineman and Charles Schultz, our photographers; Mrs. Bare and Miss Larsen, our advisors; and all who have contributed their time and effort toward the completion of this edition of the Gleaner. Without their help it would have been an impossible task.

In closing may I personally say that being editor was a very great privilege for me, and I am grateful that I have had the opportunity to be in charge of this publication. I sincerely hope that each of you enjoys this book as much as I have enjoyed helping to complete it.

Editor-In-Chief

Dear Dammmy
Don't forget me or my relation. Sure had a lot of fun this year especially at the party. God Bless ya see ya around this summer.
A good pal always
Litty

Sandip,
 Thanks for all your advice, and reminders. Always
 me. If I had your stupid all I need is your all I can't think of you were still and I never for understanding you. I never will forget me,
 Karen.

Sandip
 I'm not coming to the party
 tomorrow

Sandip! we've forgot the turn we had at your party. I + our friends met you next year. Best wishes and a friend of us all
 Love
 I

Sandy, I had a lot of fun this year, even though we had a few squabbles. Remember all the fun we had new Year's Eve. That's one night I don't think I'll forget for a while. The night of the party everybody was going to stay awake all night but nobody made (except maybe Mom). We had so much fun this year and so many things happened. Just remember to take ~~extra~~ extra to take care of your cousin, please. Don't forget Scott or his friend. We made this far and there are only two years left. Think can make it together? I hope so. Sorry I wrote so sloppily in your book. Just promise me one thing don't you ever forget about those bets we made. Be good. See ya around. A friend always (I HOPE)

P.S. Don't forget NUT. Most of all don't forget Phy. Ed. and Study Hall. Hope we have some classes together next year. That was fun.
Me. (Linda)

Sandy.
Best of luck
to a nice girl and friend. Were junior next year!!!

Students Were

Awards

Near the end of the school year awards are presented to some of our outstanding students. One of these awards is the Badger Boy's and Badger Girl's State Award. To achieve this honor a student must display the qualities of leadership, scholarship, and good character. A faculty poll is then made to determine which three students would best represent our school in Madison.

The second of these honors is admission to National Honor Society. Every student with a grade average of 90 or more is automatically placed on the prospective list; driver's education, band, chorus, and physical education are not included. After this faculty committee evaluates each student on the basis of service, character, and leadership. The new inductees are announced on Awards Day, June 1.

The Top Ten are the ten seniors with the highest grade average for all four years. They are selected on just their grade average. Transfer students are not eligible unless they have been here at least two years.

Every quarter two students are selected as the Good Citizens for that quarter. Each teacher nominates two students he thinks should win; the Loyalty Council then votes for two students from this list.

Badger State Representatives: Barry Luetscher, Jim Feuerstein, Linda Sale.

Top Ten Honor Students: Barbara Brown, Carole Douglas, Jean Claridge, Jane Krueger, Carla Ott, Sue Hinrichs, Linda Christopherson, Joyce Adkins, Linda Luetscher, Nancy Bloss.

Honored on Awards Day

National Honor Society inductees were: Ann Opnoven, Carole Douglas, Duane Steiner, Kathy Koenecke, and Jim Espy.

Webb Musicians Were

"After a lot of painstaking work, I felt the results were amazing," said Miss Humphrey, the vocal music director, after the vocal department received eight firsts at the Solo and Ensemble Contest at Portage in April. Dinah Bauer and the Triple Trio, who entered in Class A, won and were eligible to enter the State Contest.

The band members at the Portage Contest won thirty-nine firsts. Of these, sixteen were in Class A and went to the State Contest. They were the Brass Choir, the String Choir, the Clarinet Choir, a Trombone Duet, a Trombone Quartet, a Baritone Duet, a Sax Duet, the Woodwind Quintet, a Drum Trio, and seven soloists: Dinah Bauer, Don Winters, Bob Bittner, Kathy Schenck, John Luehrsen, Chris Heck, and Jane Simpson.

For many, the State Contest held in Eau Claire, was the final goal since they had begun practicing five months earlier. Their work proved worthwhile for the band returned with nine firsts. They were: the Brass Choir, the Clarinet Choir, the String Choir, a Trombone Duet, a Trombone Quartet, a Baritone Duet, and three solos: Dinah Bauer, Don Winters, and Bob Bittner. The Triple Trio and Dinah Bauer both received thirds in vocal participation.

State soloists were: Bob Bittner, Dinah Bauer, and Don Winter.

Theme

Prom

Carousel was the theme of the 1967 Junior Class prom, which transformed the school gymnasium into a circus scene on Saturday evening, April 23. The juniors had decided to use a theme different from the typical romantic and dreamy settings of previous years.

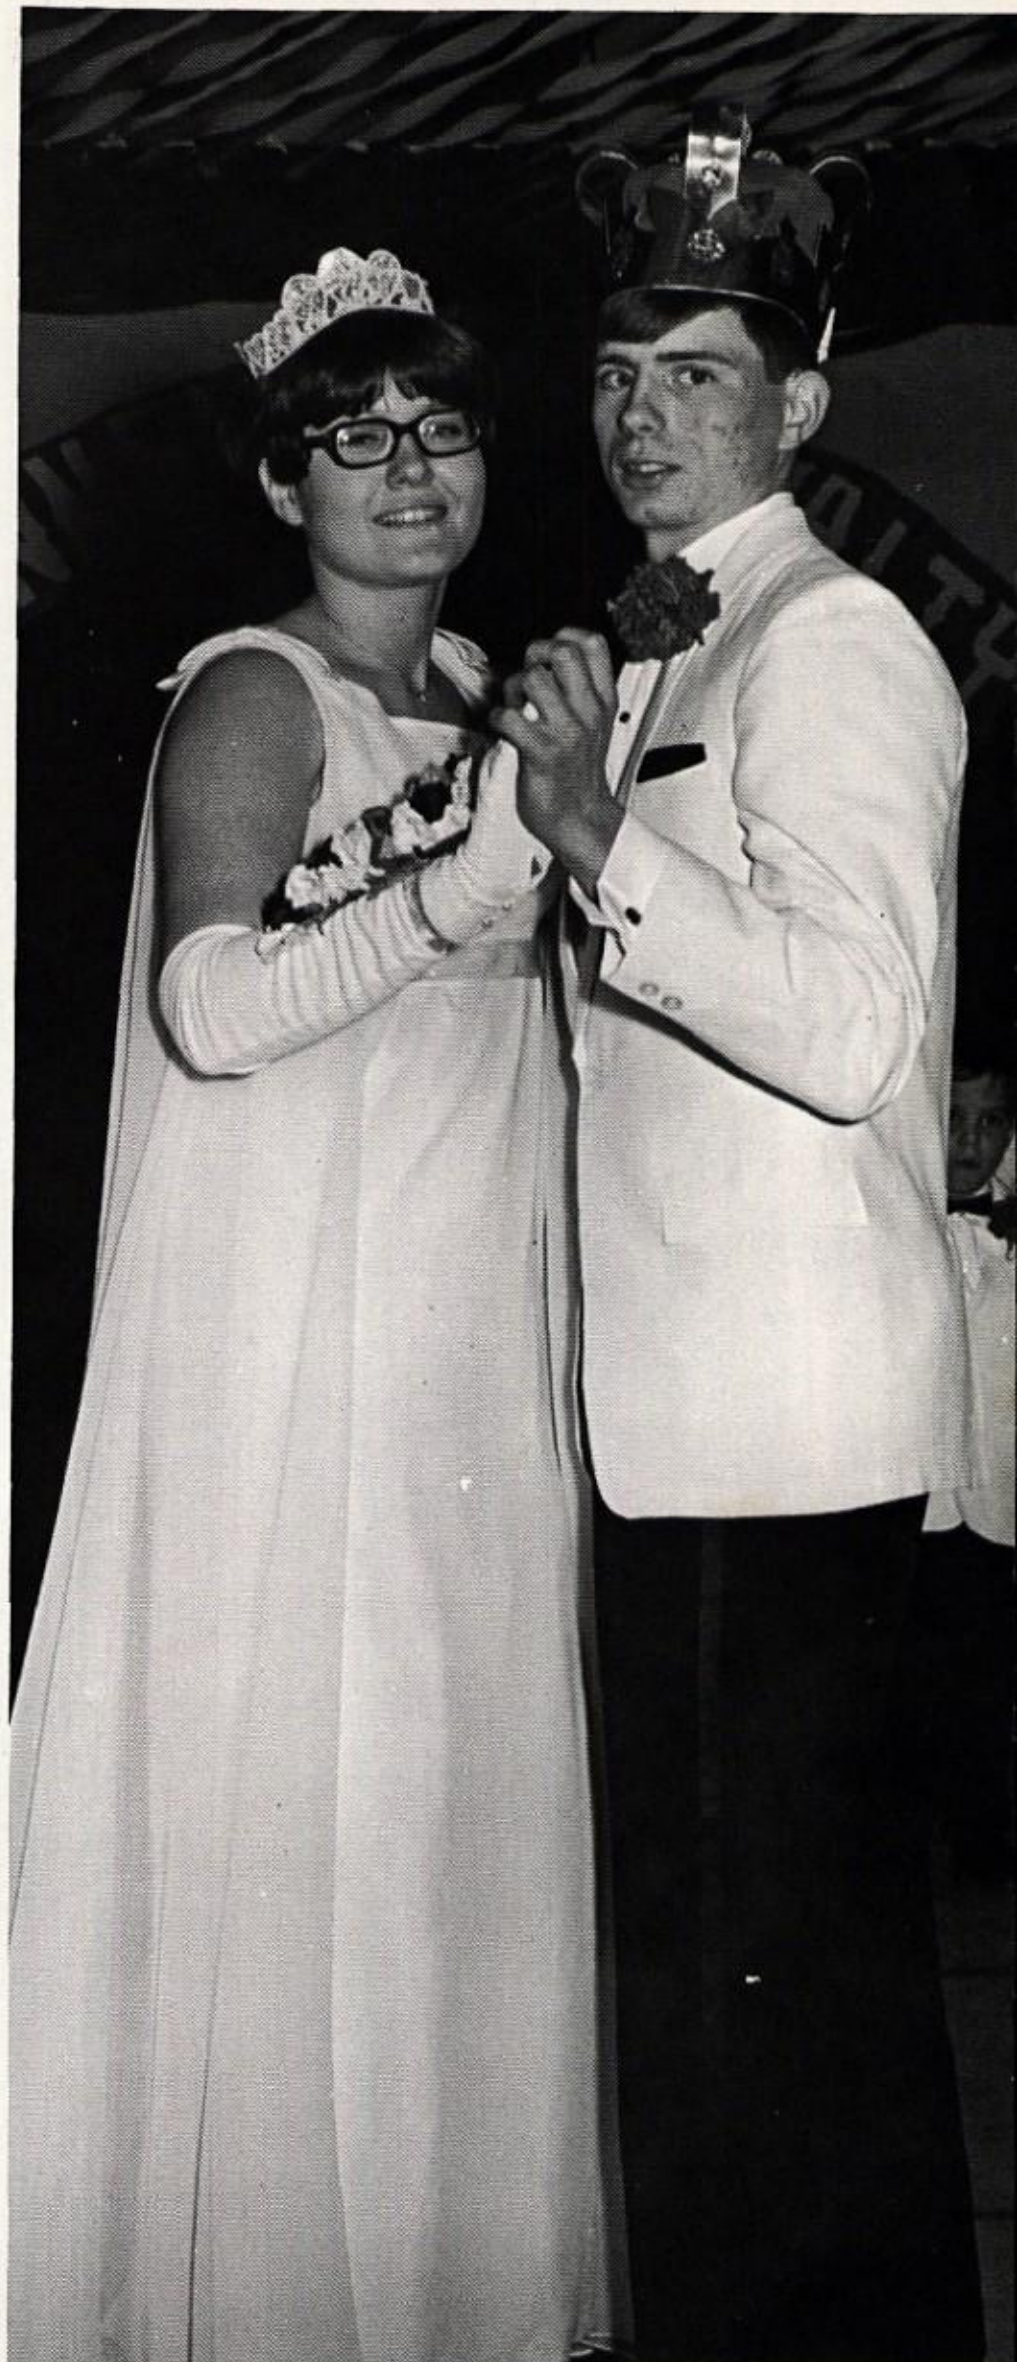

Before entering into the actual circus wonderland, the couples and spectators walked through an entrance lined with murals depicting various carnival scenes. Gay music also added to the carnival atmosphere.

Red, white and blue streamers helped transform the gym into a large merry-go-round. Multi-colored horses were arranged on poles around the edge. Murals were also used on the walls to indicate carnival festivities.

The couples danced to the music of Rick Cortney and his orchestra, who were centered in the middle of the huge merry-go-round.

The crowning took place before a large mural called "The Tunnel of Royalty." King Gary Schara placed the crown on his queen Paula Meister. Junior class officers and Loyalty Council members formed the rest of the court.

Eighth grade students attired in vender outfits served the refreshments, pink lemonade and peanuts, to the couples.

50 Years

Steve Hyzer, president of the senior class, accepted the Loyalty Trophy from Superintendent Lyle R. Bruss at the Loyalty Banquet.

Loyalty Council representatives and class presidents awaited the news of the Loyalty Trophy winner.

Of Loyalty

Loyalty

"Fifty years of Loyalty" beckoned the imaginations of each class to produce appropriate table decorations and songs for the 50th Anniversary of the Loyalty Banquet at Webb.

Each class Loyalty Representative is democratically selected from a ballot box, a decade which they used as the basis for their class' subtheme. Loyalty night the Freshman Tables characterized the thirties, their theme being "Stars and Stripes of the Thirties." Third-placed table decorations went to the Sophomores and their "Mission Peace." Snoopy and "Our Changing World" displayed by the Junior Tables depicted the era of the Sixties. Senior decorations rated Number One with "The Decade of Golden Dreams."

Good Citizens Awards for the final quarter were presented by Mr. Olson, who came back to celebrate the fiftieth Loyalty. The recipients of the awards for outstanding citizenship were, Nancy Bloss and Don Winter, both Seniors.

At long last, the time for the final tally of votes came. Class Presidents and Loyalty Representatives were on the stage ready to mark down the scores for each category. The Juniors kept their lead to the last in scoring, but were put down by the Seniors who captured twenty points for scholarship. The Class of 1967 won Loyalty after three years of hope and hard work.

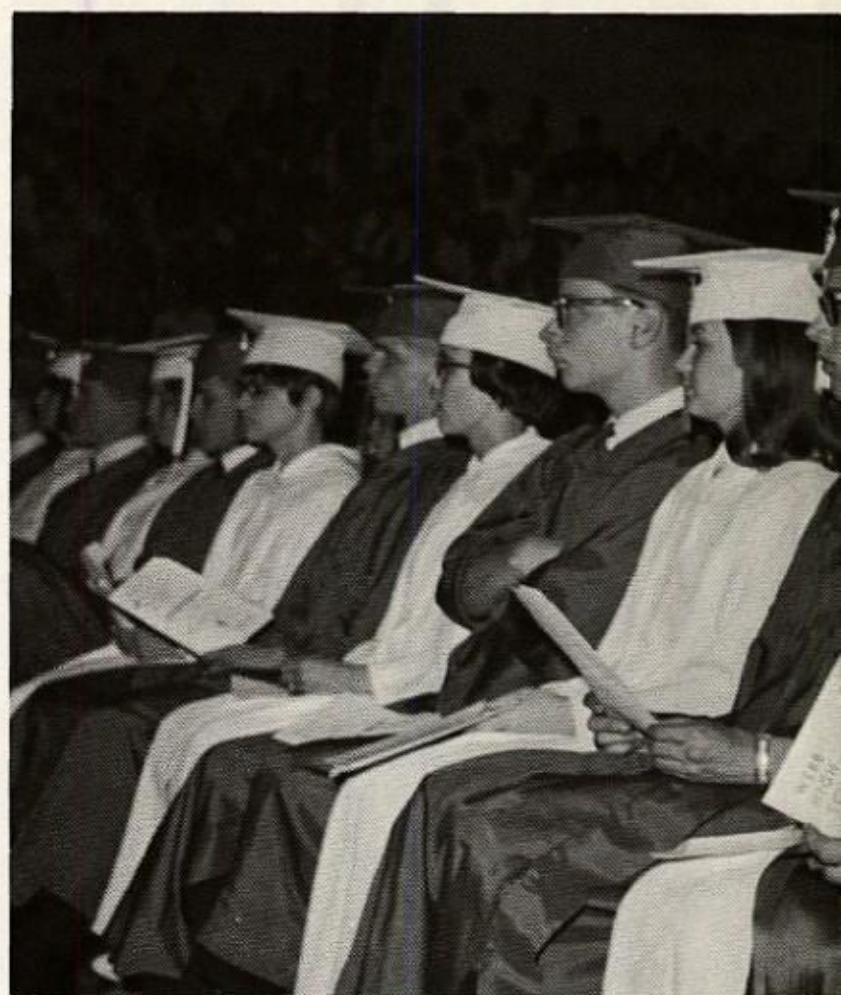

The excitement of receiving the Loyalty Trophy was reflected in Barb Brown as she heard the results of the year's competition.

Senior representatives and the class president reviewed the scoreboard following the banquet.

This year's graduation picture was Reverend Youngdahl.

Emotions

The Baccalaureate program for the graduating class of 1967 was held on Sunday, May 28, in the Webb High School Auditorium, with the Father Kenneth Klubertanz, assistant at Sacred Heart Parish here in Reedsburg, officiating.

On the evening of June 1, strains of the song "Born Free" could be heard as the graduation ceremonies were being held in the Webb High School Auditorium. The auditorium was packed as the graduating seniors entered the gym for a last memorable evening to the processional music being played by the band.

The speaker of the Graduation ceremonies was Reverend Ruben Youngdahl of Minneapolis, Minnesota, who is the pastor of one of the largest parishes in Minneapolis. Just a few weeks prior to Graduation, Reverend Youngdahl returned from an around the world trip with South Viet Nam as one of its key-points.

During the evening, various awards were given to some very worthy recipients, such as the music, athletic and Top Ten Students. Other awards and scholarships were given by various organizations.

They Raced to the Finish Line

There are different aspects of track, such as Jim Montgomery demonstrated, the hurdles.

Track

The 1967 Reedsburg Track Team raced through an exciting season which provided discouragements and satisfaction equally for both the team members and their backers.

Coaches McNaughton and Holt guided the team as it progressed during the year. The Varsity finished with a Dual Meet record of two wins and three losses. At the Conference Meet, Reedsburg captured fourth place and at the Sectional, the Beavers took third. The "B" team went winless, but took three losses in the Dual Meet competition and also placed fourth in the annual Freshman-Sophomore Tournament.

Reedsburg was proud to send two trackmen to the State Meet this year. They were Jim Holzman, who competed in the mile event, and Ron Halvensleben, in the 880 run.

Batmen Drove in Wins

Baseball

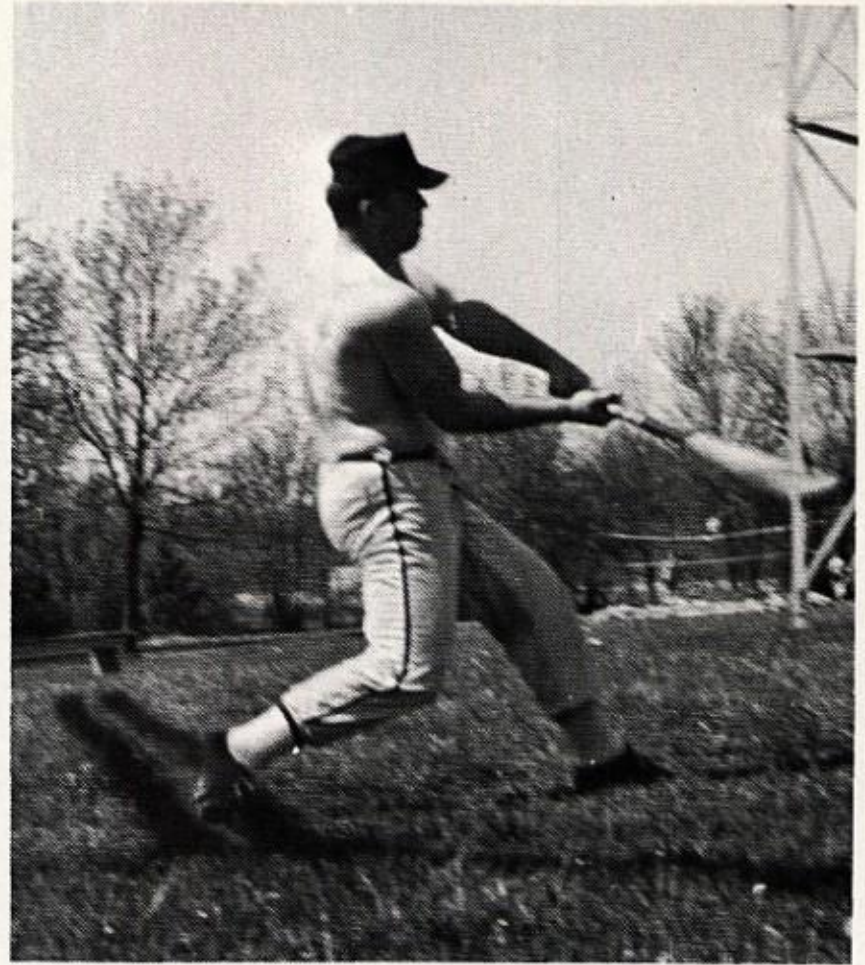

By compiling a record of 11-3 our baseball team proved to be one of the better teams in the conference. The players worked hard to achieve this outstanding record this season.

In the race for top honors, the Beavers won the district championship by beating Baraboo 4-0. Their bid was finally stopped with a lost to Westby, 4-3 in sectional tournament.

Since both of our starting pitchers this year were juniors, we can expect some fine pitching and another strong team next year.

Golfers Met Strong Opposition

The Webb Golfers, under new leadership, struggled through a tough schedule only to finish in a disappointing last place on Conference play. Mr. Houghton took over the coaching reins for the team which included three returning lettermen. As for their future, the golfers have nowhere to go but up if they have the traditional Beaver spirit, we can definitely look for a movement in this direction soon.

Skillful Mark Volk practiced his swing before the opening tee off.

High Ground

A unique feature of this year's All-School play, High Ground, was the use of a double cast which enabled the student body to see the production twice, April 14 and 15, with a different cast each evening. The double cast proved advantageous in several other ways as well. There was less pressure on the cast for being present at each rehearsal. The student director received more responsibilities. Seventeen of the total number of twenty-two cast members were Seniors. All cast members worked three evenings each week for several weeks in preparation for their performance. They were directed by Mr. Robert Sessions and Don Winter, the student director.

The set, designed by Mr. Sessions was constructed by the senior speech and drama classes. Many weeks of effort were put forth to create this detailed set, representing a convent.

Mr. Sessions was very pleased with the outcome of the play, an intense drama about a convicted murderer soon to be executed. He was especially pleased with the double cast which he said made the two performances entirely different. The cast members thought the plan worked well. Those who viewed the plays were also pleased with the productions.

Carolyn Morton, center, served Donna Christopherson and Carol Dempsey in a scene in High Ground.

Sandi:
Remember Loxpith
and all the fun we had, just be good, and have fun this summer. Hope to see you next year.
